32 LIVES LOST AS TORNADOES SWEEP TEXAS

Storms Center Around Waco, Extend South to San Antonio.

FROST'S BUSINESS SECTION WIPED OUT

Refugee Tells of Many Injured in Streets Crying for Aid.

WOMAN, BABY KILLED AS HOME COLLAPSES

$25,000 Asked of Kansas City Red Cross After Midwest Cyclones.

Dallas, Tex., May 6 (A.P.).—Thirty-two persons were believed killed today in a series of tornadoes which dipped down upon widely separated sections of the State; twenty of the dead had been identified.

The tornadoes, centering in the central part of the State around Waco extended as far south as San Antonio. High windstorms, hail and rain were reported in many sections of the State.

Among the identified dead were:

Will Bowman, 65, and grandson, Bill Bowman, 5, and a name named Dickson, 70, at Frost; J. C. Kleespies, iron worker at Randolph Field, near San Antonio, fatally injured when a windstorm struck the field, injuring 15 others.

The 75-year-old mother and 6-month-old baby of Ignaz Bacha, farmer, of near West, McLennan County, whose home was blown down.

Business Section Wiped Out.

Broken communication lines to the stricken cities made an exact count of the dead difficult tonight.

Frost, in Navarro County, had twelve known dead. Runge, in Karnes County had five known dead.

The entire business section of Frost, a town of 1,000 population in Navarro County, was wiped out and at least four persons killed, according to B. N. George, who returned to Blooming Grove from the stricken city and telephoned his information to Corsicana with a request for aid.

George said he counted four bodies and said he believed many more were buried in the debris of business buildings. The storm apparently did little damage in the residence section.

George added that many injured were in the streets crying for help. Physicians and ambulances were dispatched to the town from half a dozen neighboring cities.

Corsicana sent a special train.

100-Mile Wind.

Fragmentary telephone messages received by the Waco News Tribune indicated the death of at least nine persons in McLennan, Hill and Navarro County communities. The Tribune's reports show one dead near Abbott, three at Bynum, two at Mertens and three near Brookins.

At Abilene, Tex., tolay a windstorm tore the roof off the gymnasium of McMurry College and hurled tiles through the skylight of the Hilton Hotel. Several persons were injured slightly. At the Abilene Airport the wind registered 100 miles an hour.

Storms in Oklahoma.

Kansas City, May 6 (A.P.).—Tornadoes that struck with fury in Texas today came on the heels of twisters which dealt scattered destruction last night in Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska.

As storm conditions continued in the Southwest, six names were added to the list of more than a score killed last Thursday when tornadoes ripped through sections of Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa. In the latest disturbances outside Texas, nearly 40 persons were injured, only a few of them dangerously.

High winds visited Oklahoma again today. More than $5,000 damage was caused by a gale at Delhi. Considerable damage was done also south of Oklahoma City, but none was reported injured.

Lightning striking a barn near Topeka, Kans., killed Montgomery Bolis, Negro truck driver. Harold Groth, 8 years old, was drowned near Sylvan Grove, Kans., when caught on a flooded highway.

Child Blown Away.

Three were killed last night in Oklahoma, including a 3-month-old child blown away when the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Black, near Chickasha, was demolished. Mrs. C. T. Bush, 63, and a 16-year-old Negro boy were killed by a tornado near Greenfield.

Seeking refuge in a chicken house, Barney Von Bon, farmer, near Petersburgh, Nebr., was killed as the structure was smashed by the wind.

The principal destruction in Oklahoma was in the western part of the State. Derricks in the oil fields were demolished, a dozen houses and sev-

A scene similar to that depicted in this picture, taken at the height of recent rioting, in Bombay, was repeated yesterday when followers of Gandhi staged a procession in protest against his imprisonment.

APRIL GRAND JURY BILLS CHALLENGED

F. H. Smith Co., York Killing and Dayton Indictments in Danger of Quashing.

DRY LAW IS ACTION BASIS

Possibility loomed last night that indictments returned against officials of the F. H. Smith Co., in the Dexter Dayton murder case, the slaying of Prohibition Agent Lamar Watson York and in other cases by the present April grand jury may be quashed.

The opinion was current on the basis of expectations that a motion would be filed this morning in District Supreme Court to quash the indictment in which G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board of the F. H. Smith Co., is charged with embezzling $1,136,000. The motion is predicated on the reported fact that a member of the present grand jury which returned the indictment was convicted in Police Court on April 2, 1927, on a charge of violating the National Prohibition Act.

Facts and proof to support the motion are now in the hands of Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert and Rudolph H. Yeatman, attorneys for Pitts, it was learned last night. The attorneys would not disclose the name of the grand juror pending the filing of the motion.

It is understood that the motion will state that the grand juror concerned is disqualified from serving on the inquisitorial body since a prohibition law violation is a misdemeanor involving moral turpitude. It also was understood that the point involved in the proposed motion already has been upheld in effect by the Court of Appeals in the case of the United States vs. Rott.

While United States Attorney Leo A. Rover could not be reached for comment on the matter last night it was understood that in event the court upholds the motion that the entire work of the grand jury will be thrown out. Pitts was indicted early last month, the indictment being one of the first returned by the present or April grand jury.

Similar motions, it is expected, will be filed in connection with the indictment in which Pitts, Samuel J. Henry, C. Elbert Anadale and others are jointly charged with conspiracy

Delhi Ruled by Soldiers After Two Are Slain In Demonstration.

Mahatma Writes Irwin History's Verdict Will Blame British.

Bombay, India, May 6 (A.P.).—An almost endless list of outbreaks today marked the turning of the imprisoned Mahatma Gandhi's campaign of civil disobedience from peaceful into warlike progress.

Bloodshed occurred in a dozen cities where hostile action of the "holy one's" followers were met with armed force.

The home and Indian governments strengthened the hands of local police authorities with troops and armored cars.

Outstanding among the day's disorders was a clash at Delhi in which two natives were killed and 50 or more seriously wounded. A half-mile procession of Gandhi's devotees filed into the city's principal thoroughfare, Chandi Chowk, refusing to disperse.

With this group the authorities grappled for several hours, finally being obliged to seek the aid of cavalry troops, who emerged this afternoon in control of the situation.

Following the Delhi disturbances the police proclaimed a state of martial law, forbidding the gathering of more than five persons. Enforcement of this statute throughout India would necessitate mobilization of every available troop, both European and native.

Meanwhile the central figure in this turbulent picture remained remote from strife within the encircling walls of the Poona Jail, where, according to latest information, he was well and cheerful.

Gandhi's second letter to Viceroy Lord Irwin was made public today. In it he said "history's verdict would be that the British, not understanding, had goaded human nature to violence."

The most pessimistic observers admitted today's developments had not been of the seriousness expected, although the situation had reached its tensest moment.

Industry and trade felt the full force of the "passive resistance" effort, being virtually at a standstill in most of the larger cities. Schools and colleges remained closed, their students participating in the demonstrations.

At Navsari Mrs. Gandhi and her son, Manilal, rallied a multitude and urged them to "put aside weakness" and become free, declaring if they failed Gandhi would never be re-

NAVAL PARITY COST PLACED AT BILLION

Britten Will Submit Bill for Huge Appropriation in House Today.

HAS TALK WITH ADAMS

(Associated Press.)

A bill to authorize a ten-year naval construction program to cost $1,000,000,000 was being drafted yesterday by Chairman Britten of the House naval committee, who said the "enormous expenditure will be necessary to place the American Navy on a parity with the British navy under the terms of the London Navay Treaty."

Mr. Britten announced after a conference with Secretary Adams, a member of the American delegation to the London Arms Conference, that he would introduce the bill. He said he obtained confidential figures from the Secretary which showed new construction requirements necessary to place the American Navy on a parity with the British fleet at the expiration of the treaty in 1936.

In addition to the 75,300 tons of 6-inch-gun cruisers allowed the United States under the treaty, the Illinois member said, the program would call for 150,000 tons in new destroyers, 52,700 tons in new submarines and 69,000 tons in aircraft carriers.

While all but the new cruisers will be replacements in the present naval establishment, Mr. Britten explained, the construction would be necessary to keep abreast of the British, who, he said, scrapped their ships when they reached the age limit.

Pointing out that the war-time built destroyers now in service were fast reaching the obsolescent stage and that all but three of the present submarines will reach their age limit by 1936, Mr. Britten said replacements would have to be laid down before the end of that year to insure parity by 1940 when they would be completed.

Mr. Britten plans to introduce the bill today. At the same time the Senate foreign affairs committee will meet to outline its program for hearing members of the American delegation before the treaty is placed before the Senate for ratification.

The Illinois member will forward the bill to Secretary Adams for a report from the Navy Department which he said, "will reflect the administration views."

"Then we will call Secretary Adams, members of the naval general board

7,000 BELIEVED QUAKE VICTIMS IN BURMA PORT

Rioting Breaks Out After Shock, Tidal Wave and Fire.

50 DIE, 204 INJURED IN NEARBY RANGOON

Holy Places Are Ruined; Gold Weather Vane Thrown Down.

ISLAND REPORTED TO HAVE VANISHED

Entire Population of Pegu, Founded in 537 A. D., Made Homeless.

London, May 6 (A.P.).—A dispatch to the Daily Mail tonight estimated that between 5,000 and 7,000 persons were killed in the earthquake at Pegu, Burma, last night. The dispatch, sent by its correspondent in Rangoon, said that 50 persons had ben killed in Rangoon, and that 204 were injured.

The gold weathervane of the Shwe-Dagon Pagoda at Rangoon, valued at about $1,250,000, crashed to the ground from the top of its golden tower.

Indians were said to regard the earthquake and the tidal wave as punishment for the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi. In addition to the horrors of the disaster, riots broke out last night. Soldiers and police had to subdue demonstrators, who stripped foreign cloth from passers-by and burned it.

Ancient Port Desolate.

Rangoon, Burma, May 6 (A.P.).—The ancient seaport of Pegu, one of the most important in British India, lay desolate tonight from an earthquake and tidal wave that overwhelmed it during the night. It was estimated that between 400 and 1,000 persons had perished. Southern Burma suffered in the disaster.

Fire following the earthquake and the tidal wave destroyed what few vestiges of habitations were left in this Pegu, whose history goes back to 537 A. D.

The immense tidal wave overwhelmed the city without time for warning. Dead and wounded were still being taken from the ruins tonight and a makeshift hospital camp was giving first aid.

Holy Place Wrecked.

Broken communications and disorganization of public services made accurate information meager. Few buildings escaped damage, even the roof of the famous Shwe-Maw-Daw pagoda, an ancient temple rising to a height of 324 feet, was wrecked. The pagoda is one of the holiest places in all Burma.

Though the greatest damage in the Pegu division, which includes the City of Rangoon, was at Pegu itself, Rangoon suffered terribly in the earthquake. Two hundred dead had been taken from the ruins of many buildings tonight and uncounted others still lay in the debris.

The earthquake was one of the worst ever known in a district that has frequently suffered from them. Towns near Rangoon and Pegu were badly shaken and communications were cut, so that casualties elsewhere could not be verified. One report said that Thongwa Island, in the Hanthawaddy district, had disappeared entirely.

Entire City Homeless.

Virtually the entire population of Pegu, normally about 8,769, was homeless and shelterless tonight. The municipal building, the banks, the government school, the police com-

BAKER CASE SUSPECT WILL BE QUESTIONED; CONFESSION CLAIMED

Man Held in Warrenton Said to Have Tried to Strangle Self.

ARRESTED AT FIRST ON BAD-CHECK COUNT

Statement He Killed Girl Made in Joking Way, Sheriff Avers.

SHELBY TO SEND MEN TO GRILL PRISONER

Theft of Suitcase in Ellipse Engages Attention of District Police.

A man who is alleged to have told police of Fauquier County, Va., that he killed Mary Baker and a few minutes after the alleged confession attempted to strangle himself, will be questioned at Warrenton, Va., by Washington detectives.

Fauquier County policemen arrested the suspect yesterday at Manassas, Va., on a charge of issuing worthless checks at Remington, Va. While en route to the place of the issuance of the checks the man, according to Officer J. Mills, said, "I am dying of consumption and you might as well have the reward. I killed Mary Baker."

Sheriff W. S. Woolf, of Fauquier County, would not verify the story last night, although he admitted having heard a rumor to that effect. He went immediately to the county jail at Warrenton, and after questioning the man he announced that the rumor was unfounded.

Statement Made Jokingly.

Officer Mills told a Post reporter that he had tried to communicate with officials of Arlington County, but had been unsuccessful. Sheriff Woolf said that the man had made the statement in a facetious manner, but expressed his intention of referring the incident to Arlington County authorities. Inspector William S. Shelby, after hearing of the occurrence last night, declared that men will bt assigned to check the rumor.

After interrogating the suspect for more than an hour last night, Peter Shirley, county jailer, announced that he is convinced that he has no connection with the crime.

The man said that he had been in Washington two months ago and had purchased a gray cap in a store on ninth street. Shirley would not confirm Mills' assertion that the man had attempted to strangle himself while in the Remington, Va., lockup.

Wanted to Give Officer Thrill.

As the reason for the assertion that he killed Mary Baker, the suspect explained that he wanted to give the officer who arrested him on the worthless check charge "a big thrill."

Mills said the man came to Remington on April 28. Since then he had been stopping at a boarding house. Mills located him yesterday in Manassas. In the time he spent at Remington, Mills alleges, he issued three worthless checks for small amounts.

Regarding his whereabouts on April 11 and 12, the man could give no definite explanation, but said he thought he was in North Carolina working as an electrician.

Suitcase Theft Investigated.

Theft of a suitcase yesterday from an automobile parked in the vicinity of the Ellipse engaged the attention of local detectives. It was from an automobile parked in the area in which coral beads and a pair of silk stockings were stolen on March 20. These were found with Miss Baker's belongings in a sewer near the murder scene.

Peter Pross, of Brooklyn, who was sightseeing in West Potomac Park, reported the theft to Third Precinct police. In the bag were two suits, a coat and men's haberdashery valued at $250. On the theory that the thief

BISHOP JAMES CANNON.

Edwin C. Jameson, of New York, a mild-mannered executive who never took much interest in politics prior to 1928, told the Senate lobby committee yesterday how he contributed $172,000 to support the Hoover ticket in that year, including $65,300 to Bishop James Cannon, jr., to support the anti-Smith Democrats in Virginia, and $50,000 to finance a group of anti-Smith Democrats in the Southwest.

He also revealed how a personal gift of $7,300 to Bishop Cannon—to pay the bishop's debts, as Mr. Jameson put it—had been listed at the bishop's suggestion as a part of Mr. Jameson's campaign contributions, although it was made months after the 1928 election.

When Chairman Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, questioned the propriety of listing a gratuity to the bishop among campaign contributions, Mr. Jameson replied that he was merely anxious to report everything having to do with his financing of

DEMOCRATS TO WAR ON FLEXIBLE CLAUSE

Senators Declare Firmness in Battle to Let Hoover Keep Tariff Power.

IN OPPOSITION TO HOUSE

(Associated Press.)

On the eve of Senate consideration of the conference report on the tariff bill, Democrats sounded a warning last night that they would not yield or compromise on the Simmons-Norris flexible provision restoring to Congress the power delegated to the President eight years ago to change customs duties.

The House rejected the Senate flexible provision last week and insisted upon its own flexible amendment, which retains the authority in the President and provides for equalization of differences in competitive conditions where costs of production are not obtainable in determining emergency rates.

Citing expressions of Republican leaders that a compromise would be continued, Senator Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico, in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, said:

"No compromise upon a fundamental question of this character is defendable. Neither should such an issue be surrendered in the interest of legislative speed or expediency."

Contending the "power to tax is the power to destroy," Senator Bratton said it was his belief that "senators, through whose efforts the amendment restoring the exercise of the flexible provision to Congress—its constitutional residium—was inserted, are thoroughly mindful of the importance of the issue thus presented, and accordingly will stand firm in their adherence to the unmistakable spirit of the Constitution."

The conference report on the Hawley-Smoot measure is expected to be called up by Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee today immediately after the vote on the Parker nomination.

It is the Utah senator's intention to ask for approval of the report covering all rates and administrative

DEFEAT OF PARKER BY TWO VOTES SEEN

Pairing of Senators Apt to Influence Result in Balloting Today.

ASHURST CHARGE FADES

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Senate will vote today at 1:30 o'clock on the nomination of Judge John J. Parker for the Supreme Court with the outcome decidedly in doubt and probably to be determined by two or three votes either way.

So close will the result be, in fact, that the manner in which one pair of absent senators is arranged may be the determining factor. This being the case, the leaders of the opposing sides were watching each other with unwonted closeness. It may very well be that Vice President Curtis will have the deciding vote.

Several private polls indicated the possibility of Judge Parker's rejection by perhaps two votes.

The debate petered out early yesterday after one of the tensest scenes that the Senate has witnessed in many months. Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, who on Monday had charged that Fedetal judgeships were being offered for Parker votes, took what he himself described as an awful hazing as his charges proved to be a dud.

With the administration forces pressing him like wolves and seeking to make the most of the only break they have had in the entire fight, Ashurst named Senator Dill, of Washington, as the man who had been approached.

Mr. Dill said he had been approached by a Republican from his State having no connection with the administration and told that he would be in high favor with the administration if he voted for Parker.

Dill said he had been amused, and had not even considered the matter serious enough to take resentment.

For a while administration forces had the opposition on the run. Senator Watson, Republican leader, moved that further consideration of the Parker nomination be deferred until Monday and that in the meantime the judiciary committee investigate

Mrs. E. M. Morse Deposed As Guardian of Ryan Heirs

Appointment of Uncle of Scions, 16 and 18, Victory for Youth.

New York, May 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Youth was once more triumphant over the Victorian era today when Surrogate James A. Foley granted the application of Elinor M. and Joseph J. Ryan, heirs of the vast Thomas Fortune Ryan estate, and appointed their uncle, Clendenin J. Ryan, as a coguardian in place of their 74-year-old grandmother, Mrs. Ellen M. Morse. Although the children had based their plea on the fact that they wanted "some one with greater knowledge of the world," the surrogate's decision was influenced particularly by the fact that Mrs. Morse was not a resident of New York State, making her home, as she does, on a farm near Washington, D. C.

Surrogate Foley said he felt the interests of the children, who are just

Illness of Joffre Kept From Public

Marshal Forbids News of Ailment to Be Published; Queries Unanswered.

Paris, May 6 (A.P.).—Marshal Joseph Jacques Cesaire Joffre, victor of the battle of the Marne in September 14, was seriously ill tonight at his country home in Louveciennes, near Paris.

Since returning from southern France a week ago, the marshal, who is 78 years old, has forbidden that information about his condition or his whereabouts be issued. The fact that he was ill became known only tonight. Telephone queries to Louveciennes went unanswered, and the Joffre home was barred to newspapermen.

The illness began during a visit to his birthplace on the shores of the Mediterranean in the eastern Pyrenees region. On returning to Paris, he had to be assisted from the train to his automobile. His weakness was very apparent, and he appeared to have aged greatly.

Slayer of Deputy Is Killed by Posse

Crazed Man Empties Shotgun at Pursuers Before He Expires.

Burlington, Kans., May 6 (A.P.).—Undersheriff G. M. Rickman was shot and killed here today and City Marshal George Griffith was wounded by an unidentified crazed Negro who himself was later shot to death by a posse.

Trouble started when Rickman was told that the Negro, a newcomer to Burlington, was terrorizing residents in the south part of town with a gun. Rickman went to arrest him and received a fatal charge from the Negro's weapon. Marshal Griffith then went after the man and was wounded in the neck after an exchange of shots.

A citizens' posse numbering about 100 formed immediately. The killer took refuge in a house near the Santa Fe station but made a break when he saw he was about to be surrounded. Shots were fired after him and he fired back until his shotgun was empty before he fell with many bullets in his body.

5-Foot Snake Halts Traffic On F Street; Girls Squeal

Taximan Picks Up Reptile and Takes It Away in His Cab.

A snake—not of the sofa variety—was taken into custody last night for annoying flappers in front of the Palace Theater, on F street. Annoying is too mild a term, perhaps. The snake, a 5-foot, real, live, wiggly one, came very nearly blocking traffic, some 500 people gathering excitedly as Bicycle Policeman Jess R. Birch pinned down the reptile with his wheel.

Traffic Sergt. Milton D. Smith went to his assistance, but it was Diamond Cab Driver N. H. Shackleford who played the hero. Driver Shackleford calmly lifted the 5-foot reptile by the tail, put it in his cab, and drove away with it. He says he likes snakes and will keep this one for a pet.

Speculation was equally divided anent the snake's pedigree and his

ATTACK INDICTMENT RETURNED BY JURY

Assault on Girl and Attempt on Another Charged to Man Held in Jail.

EARLY TRIAL EXPECTED

Dellie Clark, colored, 35 years old, was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on charges of criminal assault and attempted criminal assault on two white girls on April 22 and April 23 last. The case was presented to the grand jury last week and it is expected that he will be put on trial at an early date. Conviction would carry a death penalty.

Clark is indicted on a charge of criminal assault in connection with an attack on Miss Helen V. Teawalt, a Western Union employe. According to testimony given at the Police Court hearing on April 26, Miss Teawalt testified that she was going home early in the morning of April 22 when at Illinois avenue and Taylor street northwest the Negro came up from behind and seized her. She testified that she screamed and scratched the man before losing consciousness.

The charge of attempted assault is in connection with an attempted attack on Miss Dorothy Burns, 16 years old, in front of her home on Varnum street northwest, near Fourteenth street, early in the morning of April 23.

According to police records the Negro was captured while struggling with Miss Burns, his captor being William Brainin, 19 years old, of Capitol Heights, Md., who was in the vicinity at the time. Brainin, attracted by the girl's screams, held the Negro until the police arrived.

Clark is now in jail in lieu of bond of $50,000.

Change Advocated For Police Trials

Commissioners Asked to Let Captains Try Violators of Minor Rules.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, yesterday submitted to the new Board of District Commissioners a recommendation in the disciplinary provisions of the police manual which was submitted to the former board of Commissioners by Maj. Edwin B. Hesse. Maj. Pratt's predecessor.

The plan provides for the trial of policemen by their captains for minor offenses. Underthe present rules it is necessary for a commanding officer to cite a man for trial before the Police Trial Board. The proposed new scheme originated with Maj. Pratt, when he was assistant superintendent of police in charge of the Detective Bureau. He proposed it to Maj. Hesse, who recommended it to the former Board of Commissioners, but they took no action on it.

The maj. and superintendent would revive the disciplinary action taken by the captains under the modified rules and only major cases would be sent before the Trial Board.

BONDSMAN CHARGES STUDIED BY RITCHIE

Governor Asks for Ruling of Attorney General as to Changing Warrant.

JUDGE SHERIFF CLEARED

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie will informally bring to the attention of Prince Georges County authorities the charges that police officers in the county had been in league with bondsmen in connection with an alleged speed trap on the Baltimore boulevard. The American Automobile Association had brought to the attention of the governor the charges that county officers were arresting motorists and forcing them to post bond costing $100 on a 60-mile-an-hour speed charge and then reducing the charge to $40 on condition that the defendants plead guilty.

The announcement followed a conference with Commissioner of Motor Vehicles E. Austin Baughman, Judge J. Chew Sheriff, of the Prince Georges County Police Court; Constable Ralph Brown, State Policeman J. J. Cassidy and representatives of the automobile association.

The governor said that county officials are fully informed as to the charges, but he nevertheless will bring them to their attention. The governor pointed out that Constable Brown is a county officer and not under jurisdiction of the State, being appointed by the county commissioners of Prince Georges County and deputized by Sheriff Charles S. Early. The sheriff, however, has no jurisdiction over the constable appointed by the county commissioners.

The chief executive of the State declared that he had not received any information which would tend to show that justices of the peace or other magistrates were involved, but that he would institute a thorough investigation and act accordingly, as magistrates are appointed by the governor.

Gov. Ritchie said that he has asked the attorney general for a ruling as to whether it is legal to change the charge on a warrant after it is issued and also to check the number of such cases on record.

The governor emphasized the statement that there is no suspicion of Judge Sheriff, who heard the charges against Officer Cassidy, which had been presented by Constable Brown. It developed in court that the State policeman had been acting under orders and that he had been arrested and charged with exceeding a speed of 60 miles an hour and made to post bond. After posting bond, the State policeman testified, he was told by the bondsman that he would try to get the arresting officer to lower the speed rate to 40, which is not so serious, if the defendant would plead guilty. When the case reached court the warrant had been amended to read exceeding 40 miles, and Judge Sheriff dismissed the charges without comment on the bond-collusion charges which had been made by Attorney Charles C. Collins of the American Automobile Association.

County officials have intimated that they intend taking no action in the matter. State's Attorney J. Frank Parran, of Prince Georges County, said that he believed the whole matter a mountain made from a molehill. Sheriff Early has no jurisdiction other than to deputize the constables, and it is not believed that under the existing law the county commissioners have any power of removal.

JURY TRIAL DENIED CAPITAL POLICEMAN

Judge to Try Former Head of Training School Held on Intoxication Charge.

CASE SET FOR SATURDAY

Sergt. Odessa Hunt, former head of the Police Training School, will be tried before Judge John P. McMahon on Saturday on a charge of intoxication booked against him Saturday night at the Third Precinct Station.

This was decided yesterday when Judge McMahon overruled a request of Attorney E. Russel Kelly, Hunt's counsel, that his client be tried before a jury. The demand for jury trial was made Monday when Hunt was arraigned, and Judge McMahon continued the case until yesterday in order to give Attorney Kelly opportunity to find authorities for his demand.

Mr. Kelly presented the authorities yesterday morning, and although the Corporation Counsel's office was not represented, the court overruled the request.

Hunt was arrested Saturday night in an apartment building at Eighteenth and I streets northwest after tenants had complained to the Third Precinct that a man was raising a disturbance. Atorney Kelly, in arguing that his client was entitled to a jury trial, declared that intoxication is a breach of peace and that under common law a breach of peace was triable by jury.

Hunt was suspended by Inspector Albert J. Headley, and Monday it was decided to try him also before the Trial Board of the Police Department.

NEW JERSEY TOWN SUFFERS IN FIRE

Above picture shows residents looking at ruins in Forked River which was probably the hardest hit in New Jersey by fires that have wrought havoc over vast areas on the seaboard between Virginia and New Hampshire. FIRE FIGHTERS GAIN ON FOREST BLAZES

With Half-Dozen Exceptions, Flames Under Control in Seven States.

RAIN AIDS IN NEW JERSEY

(Associated Press.)

With half a dozen exceptions, forest fires which caused millions of dollars of damage throughout Northeastern States over the week-end, were being brought under control last night and many of them were extinguished.

In New York State, although more than a score of fires were reported during the day, only one was out of control. That was at Copake and spread along the Taconic Mountain range into Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Fires in the northern part of New Jersey were out or under control, thanks to heavy rains which aided weary fire fighters, but four fires were still burning in the South. Thirty-five thousand men remained on guard against fresh outbreak of the fires which have burned over 100,000 acres since Saturday.

Fire broke out anew yesterday in the ruins of Nashua, N. H., where relief work is being carried on for 700 persons whose homes were burned during the week-end, but the flames were soon smothered.

In Maine there was still serious danger from fire which flamed over 15 square miles near Hollis and crept along the Saco River. Residents of Bonny Eagle Village, were driven from their homes by flames which firemen from seven villages could not halt.

The town of Canonchet, in Rhode Island, was menaced by an advancing wall of flame which in three days has swept over a 4-mile area. It was expected the National Guard might be pressed into service.

The Mount Riga fire, at the junction of the boundaries of New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut, was out on the Connecticut side, but still raged last night in the other two States. What had been Connecticut's second major fire before the Mount Riga flames in that State were checked was still out of control last night and raging along Skiff Mountain.

The 535 precincts gave McMaster 22,830; Danforth, 20,422.

CATOCTIN MOUNTAIN FLAMES SPREADING

Forest Blaze Defies Efforts of 200, Sweeping Over 10,000 Acres.

RICHEY CAMP IN PATH

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., May 6.—Defying efforts of approximately 200 men, fire in the Catoctin Mountain burned steadily. Tonight the blaze is sweeping alone the mountain top west of Catoctin Furnace. Fire lines running east and west were made late last night about 1½ miles from the fishing camp of Lawrence Richey, executive secretary to President Hoover. Twice the flames leaped the lines, but were checked by fire fighters who remained on duty all night.

The fire has swept over 10,000 acres, including 8,000 acres of the city water shed, according to estimates. More than 10,000 young trees planted along the mountain side near Hamburg by the Izaak Walton League for the purpose of retimbering the mountain, were destroyed. The fire swept down the west side to the public road within 60 feet of the home of Frank Weddle, caretaker at the city reservoir. Firemen with an automobile pumper and chemicals from Frederick saved the house and outbuildings.

The homes of Keefer Main, Charles Rice and C. H. Six, a mile south of the reservoir, were threatened. Main and his family left their home and Rice and others prepared to leave. Fire fighters saved all of the properties. Last night the fire reached the edge of the new 60,000,000-gallon reservoir. It was then burning on both sides of the mountain, having jumped across Fishing Creek at a dozen places and crossed numerous fire lines.

Several volunteer fighters were trapped about half way up the mountain and were compelled to run through the fire to escape with their lives. The Hamburg steel fire tower was surrounded by fire last night and the towerman, Albert Harley, escaped through a narrow pasage to the south and made his way to the Fishing Creek receiver.

Fire wardens agree that the water shed blaze was of incendiary origin. The most profitable crop to mountaineers is huckleberries and the yield is always more prolific following a fire that destroys undergrowth.

JURY DISAGREEMENT DELAYS DEATH QUIZ

Investigation of Slaying of Man by Patrolman to Be Continued.

MANY GIVE TESTIMONY

After two hours' deliberation yesterday afternoon, a coroner's jury investigating the fatal shooting of a colored man Sunday by Patrolman Frank W. Sandford, of the Fifth Precinct Station, failed to agree and was dismissed. It was reported the jury stood five to one for exoneration of the policeman. Coroner J. Ramsay evitt announced that a new jury will be impaneled Thursday.

Policeman Sandford mortally wounded James Campbell, colored, of 652 Navy place southeast, after Campbell and tthree other colored men are alleged to have attacked the policeman in an attempt to liberate a colored man he had placed under arrest for being drunk and disorderly.

Lieut. Edward Kelly, chief of the homicide squad, testified that he learned in his investigation that Sandford had fired at Campbell in self-defense.

Other policemen testified as to Campbell's character, declaring that the colored man had been arrested on numerous occasions.

Sandford gave a vivid account of the affray, telling how a quartet of men attacked him, one grabbig him by the tthroat in an attempt to choke him.

Sergt. Patrick Doyle, of the Marine Corps, who was an eye-witness to the attack, coroborated Sandford's story. Nearly a dozen colored residents of the Southeast section were called to testify.

1932 SCHOOL BUDGET ESTIMATE EXPECTED

Board's Finance Committee May Present Delayed Figures Today.

OTHER AFFAIRS PENDING

The finance committee of the Board of Education is expected to make a report on estimates for the 1932 school budget at a meeting of the board this afternoon at the Franklin School Building.

The finance committee held a final meeting yesterday to arrange the estimates. The estimates were supposed to have been in the hands of the District Commissioners on May 5, but the committee found it impossible to have their figures and recommendations ready by that time.

The financial report is expected to be superficial to some extent, due to the fact that the 1930 school appropriation has not been reported out by the Senate, leaving school officials in doubt as to what to recommend for the following year.

The Board of Education is also expected to act on the renewal of an offer by the Washington Gas Light Co. of a scholarship in a course of gas engineering. This scholarship will apply to pupils in the four high schools of the District and will give the selected student a four-year course in gas engineering at Johns Hopkins University. If the board acts favorably on the offer, it is also expected to determine the method by which the scholarship will be awarded.

The board is also expected to plan participation of the schools in clean-up week, which has been proclaimed by Commissioner Reichelderfer for May 19 to 24.

Prison Terms in New York Sewer Fraud Case Upheld

Connolly, Former Queens President, and Aid to Serve Year Each.

MAURICE CONNOLLY.

Albany, N. Y., May 6 (A.P.).—By order of the Court of Appeals, Maurice Connolly, former president of Queens Borough, New York City, and Frederick E. Seely, borough engineer, must serve one year in jail and pay fines of $500 each for conspiracy to defraud the borough of a sum estimated at from $10,000,000 to $16,000,000.

The State Court of Appeals today upheld their conviction and sentence.

Connolly and Seely were convicted by a Supreme Court jury a year ago last October of defrauding the city in contracts for a sewerage system for the borough. It was charged that Connolly and Seely had approved only contracts calling for sewer pipe on which the late John M. Phillips, styled the "Sewer Pipe King," held a monopoly in the borough and which he sold to the city at high prices. They allegedly divided the profits thus obtained.

The Queens sewer scandal first came to public notice two years ago last fall through the activities of then Alderman George U. Harvey who, largely through the sewer investigation, has been twice elected borough president and prominently mentioned as Republican candidate for governor.

Connolly and Seely were indicted with Phillips by an extraordinary grand jury. Phillips died in Atlantic City before he could be brought to trial.

Although no direct evidence of intimidation was uncovered one important State witness, William D'Olier, was killed before the case came to trial. D'Olier's death is still unsolved.

A $10,000,000 damage action, instituted by the City of New York against Connolly, Seely and others, in an effort to secure some return of the graft they are alleged to have taken in the construction work, is pending. Phillips' estate, said to be a large one, also is a defendant in the damage action.

SENATE WILL VOTE ON PARKER TODAY

Balloting May Be Decided by Pairing of Members, Observers Feel.

ASHURST IS RAPPED

the Arizona senator's charges. The very plain strategy was that Mr. Ashurst's charges would blow up, and by Monday there would be such a reaction in favor of the judge that he would go over with a bang.

Seldom have opposing senators had to do such quick thinking. Senators Borah and Norris and Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, protested that there was nothing to be accomplished by this, as Mr. Ashurst has recited the only evidence he had to adduce and this had been explained by Dill.

It was while Mr. Ashurst was torn between the desire of getting himself out of the position in which he had been personally placed and the desire not to let administration forces bring about a delay in the vote that he took an awful drubbing. With Senator Allen, in particular, and Senators Gillett and Stephens, the latter with the administration this time, hounding him in lesser degree, he went back over his language of Monday and reduced it bit by bit.

First it was to change "judges" to "judge" to make it read that the offer of a Federal judge had been made, and then to make the same change in another place and in endless other places.

He could not meet the attack by broadening his charges as Senator Robinson, of Indiana, would have done, because he would only have added fire to the movement to delay the vote. He was in a dickens of a fix and with no one to help him out, not even Senator Dill. Although those who spoke on his side spoke of the frivolousness of his charges when, had the circumstances been different, there would have been men to shout that if they were not true then there were others that were.

Strength of Reaction.

Senator Watson was finally prevailed upon to let the situation slip from his hands or it may be that the proving of the charges to be a dud will suffice in itself to give him victory. The question, though, was whether enough time will elapse for a reaction strong enough to sway any votes.

At the close of the tilt Mr. Ashurst was growing a little stronger. He referred to Mr. Allen as the "Republican leader of the alphabet and that only" and insisted that when he demanded on Monday that the lobby committee be called what he had in mind was something like what happened in Wilson's administration when all the senators were called before a committee in alphabetical order and made to tell just what had gone on.

Then when Senator Jones, of Washington, asked him if he had given all the "substantial" information bearing on the case, he insisted that he had given all the "legal" evidence that he had, that many other intangibles had come to his notice which were in the nature of hearsay but which as all senators appreciated, he said, had to be given varying degrees of credibility in a matter of this kind. He was convinced of enough, he insisted, without letting himself be drawn into any more open charges, that an "odium attaches to this appointment unparalleled in American politics."

Glass Starts Fireworks.

Senator Glass, of Virginia, started the fireworks, but it was apparent that he just beat the administration forces to it. Nearly everybody knew just what the judgeship charge was based upon and that it would blow up under pressure.

Mr. Glass insisted that he wanted an investigation because if there was any dignity to the charge at all he would vote against confirmation.

Senator Allen was promptly in the fray, hurling his challenge at Mr. Ashurst's charges of Monday that the judgeship offers had been made "with the consent" of Judge Parker. Mr. Ashurst had stricken this phrase from his remarks shortly after making them, but Mr. Allen took it from two newspaper accounts of Monday's debate, asserting that that was what had gone out over the country and describing it as "unconscionable" and as "what we might have expected."

Considerable surprise was felt at Senator Allen's indignation because a few months ago he forced a judge upon the administration whom the Attorney General had declared unqualified, but he nevertheless put Mr. Ashurst to flight.

The Arizona senator at first said the Senate reporters had made a mistake, but then said no, he would not blame it upon them.

At any rate, upon reading the transcript of his remarks he realized instantly that they did not reflect what he had intended to say, and so had stricken them out.

Mr. Allen said he should have seen that the newspapers were corrected, and with this recession upon the part of Mr. Ashurst the bombardment on him began. Pressed to state his facts on judgeship bartering in the open Senate, he finally, in desperation, named Senator Dill. Senator Dill had related the matter to him and Senator Bratton, of New Mexico, at luncheon.

Dill Gives Statement.

Mr. Dill, arising, said that while he was sure Mr. Ashurst had acted in good faith, he had not said that he had been offered a judgeship.

"I did say," he continued, "that I was impressed with the pressure that had been brought to bear in connection with the Parker nomination. I did say that a gentleman from my own State had told me that I would be in the highest favor with the administration if I should vote for Judge Parker. I was amused at what he said and sought to draw him out."

His friend remarked that Federal judgeships are always open, Mr. Dill related, but he told his friend, he said, that he was not interested in a Federal office, that all he really wanted, which was funny, was to retire from public life.

Matter Regarded as Jocular.

"I considered the whole matter in a jocular way," Mr. Dill continued. "I did not think for a moment that what I had said in my conversation with Senator Ashurst and Senator Bratton would go to the extent that it has gone. I never expected the matter to be brought up here. I could not believe that I was the senator to whom Senator Ashurst had reference when he made his charge yesterday.

"There is no need of any investigation. The gentleman who talked to me is a friend of mine. He did not claim that he had any assurances from the White House that he could get me an appointment."

Senator Norris said that inasmuch as the matter had gone so far he thought Mr. Dill should identify his friend.

"He is a private citizen, and has no connection with the administration," said Mr. Dill. "I see no reason for dragging him in. I do not want any one to think that if any one came to me with such a proposal that I would not resent it, but I am not so thin-skinned as not to be able to understand that people sometimes let their enthusiasm run away with them. I think the whole matter is ridiculous."

Man Called Republican.

Senator Glass asked if the man had an interest in Judge Parker.

"He was just a Republican," replied Mr. Dill, "ready to support a Republican proposal, good, bad or indifferent."

Mr. Norris and others argued that the only thing that could be accomplished by an inquiry would be the disclosure of this man's name and even if he had any authority to make his offer he would deny it. In controversial matters such as the Parker case there is always pressure, of course, Mr. Norris said, on both sides, but senators have to bear with such conditions.

About the Capitol they were saying that Mr. Ashurst is too "impulsive" while they sought to recheck the forces after the storm.

59 GROUPED PLANES THRILL WASHINGTON

Flying Fleet to Return From New York Friday to Stage Capital Demonstration.

EN ROUTE TO AIR SHOW

Roaring out of the southeast in perfect V formations, 59 planes of the Navy scouting and battle fleets at Hampton Roads cast their shadows on Washington yesterday, temporarily disrupting office work and causing thousands in the streets to gaze upward while dodging taxis.

The planes are en route to New York's air show. They parked here last night, but continued on their impressive argosy this morning. With their numbers increased to 173, the torpedo and scouting squadrons will return to stage a demonstration over Washington and Alexandria Friday afternoon, probably between the hours of 2 and 3.

The maneuvers will be broadcast by Station WJSV from the roof of its studio on the Deniphan Building in Alexandria. Willard Burton, chief announcer, will be assisted by Lieut. Comdr. Frank W. Wagner, of the Bureau of Aeronautics.

The squadrons arrived here yesterday almost an hour behind schedule, due to a delayed take-off at Hampton Roads. After circling the city twice they landed three at a time on the Anacostia field. Commercial planes bearing about a dozen Washington photographers hovered about the formations as they gave Washingtonians one of the biggest aerial exhibitions ever seen here.

As for the six provisions still in disagreement, embracing lumber, silver, cement, the export debenture, flexible clause, and Tariff Commission reorganization, Senator Smoot will leave it to the Senate to decide whether these shall be considered for separate votes before returning the measure to conference.

$7,300 GIFT TO BISHOP CANNON CALLED CAMPAIGN EXPENSES

the successful anti-Smith campaign in Virginia.

"That was just a bonus for having done it," Senator Caraway commented.

Mr. Jameson appeared ill at ease before the lobby inquisitors. He twisted and squirmed in his chair as Senator Caraway plied him with questions and demanded canceled checks and correspondence to substantiate the answers. A slender little man, with brightly polished nose glasses, Mr. Jameson obviously did not relish the rough and tumble atmosphere of this most informal of the Senate inquisitorial agencies. Several times Senator Caraway had to ask him to speak louder.

Apparently, he could not understand why the subcommittee should be curious about the sudden increase of interest he manifested in politics in 1928, as indicated by his contributions. He was just a sincere prohibitionist trying to help the cause along, he felt, and the Hoover-Curtis ticket happened to be the beneficiary.

Has Hope Even in New York.

He was even hopeful about the dry cause in New York and told Chairman Caraway with some slight show of indignation that he was most certainly not a member of any of the Republican clubs there which have gone wet on recent polls.

And he added, referring to the coming gubernatorial campaign, that "if the Republicans don't nominate a reasonably dry candidate there is going to be a good deal of trouble."

Mr. Jameson's testimony revealed that C. Bascom Slemp, erstwhile secretary to President Coolidge, had been the go-between who brought Mr. Jameson in touch with Bishop Cannon by representing the bishop as the head of the anti-Smith Democratic movement in Virginia and commending the latter to Mr. Jameson's generosity.

Good Solicited $50,000.

It was revealed that the late Secretary of War, James W. Good, then Western campaign manager for the Hoover ticket, had solicited the $50,000 contribution for the group of Southwestern malcontents operating as the national constitutional Democratic committee. Thus the financing of anti-Smith Democratic or Hoover-cratic activities are definitely linked with official Republican sources.

Chairman Caraway read from a telegram sent by the bishop to Mr Jameson on February 12, 1929, at the time the Senate campaign expenditures committee was pressing the latter for an itemized account of his contributions to the Hoover campaign fund totaling $172,000, including $65,300 to Bishop Cannon and an additional $30,000 to the Virginia State Republican committee.

"After careful examination of the records," the bishop wired, "think statement should be, 'Paid headquarters committee Anti-Smith Democrats, $7,300; paid Virginia committee Anti-Smith Democrats, $48,000, making total $65,300.' This will correspond exactly with our official reports."

Same Figures Reported.

On the same day Mr. Jameson wrote to Chairman Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, of the campaign expenditures committee, that:

"I was advised by Bishop Cannon that of the amount which I individually gave the headquarters committee, Anti-Smith Democrats used and reported to Congress $17,300 and that the official records show that the Virginia committee Anti-Smith Democrats used $48,000, making a total of $65,300."

"Now it seems you made this report, not at your own volition, but at Bishop Cannon's suggestion," Chairman Caraway remarked.

"The report says that 'I am informed' and that I followed the information," Mr. Jameson replied.

"You followed the information from Bishop Cannon?"

"Yes, sir," Mr. Jameson said.

Did Not Check With Records.

"Although it did not correspond with your records at all?" asked Senator Caraway.

"Well, it doesn't seem to correspond with them now, does it?" was Mr. Jameson's reply.

"No, it doesn't," Senator Caraway declared.

Mr. Jameson had produced nine canceled checks, totaling $65,300, which he said represented his donations to the bishop, although only two of them were made out to the latter. The others were drawn to "Cash," and the bishop's name did not appear as indorser.

Mr. Jameson explained that he gave the various sums to the bishop in the form in which the latter asked for them. The checks drawn to "Cash" included the $7,300 given to pay the bishop's debts; one for $4,300 on December 6, 1928, and one for $3,000 on January 14, 1929.

Vague On Bishop's Debts.

Mr. Jameson was vague in his recollection as to just what the bishop's debts were, but was under the impression that an item of stationery used in the campaign and perhaps bills for printing campaign literature were included. He also said the bishop "had worked hard."

Some of the checks drawn to "Cash" were cashed by Mr. Jameson's secretary, who then gave the currency to the bishop, Mr. Jameson testified.

Other items in the Jameson list of contributions included $2,500 to the Republican State committee of New York, $20,000 to the Republican State committee of North Carolina, $5,000 to the Republican State committee of Indiana, and $50,000 to the "National Constitutional Democratic committee."

"What is that?" asked Senator Caraway, referring to the last named organization.

Caraway Denies Revolt Cause.

"That was an organization somewhat similar to the anti-Smith Democrats," Mr Jameson replied. "That was a revolt on the part of a good many Democrats in Southwestern States over the question of the eighteenth amendment."

"Oh, no," Senator Caraway interjected, "that was not what the revolt was about. That was the smoke screen."

Mr. Jameson said his contribution to the National Constitutional Democratic committee was solicited by the late Secretary of War James W. Good, then manager of the Hoover Western campaign headquarters at Chicago. It was paid to William B. Crowley, Chicago banker, as treasurer of the committee. Mr Jameson said he did not know anything about the functioning of the committee except that he had been told it worked in Tennessee and Kentucky He understood the money was to be used for speech-making purposes.

Never Saw Speakers.

"Did you ever see one of the speakers?" Senator Caraway asked.

"No," Mr. Jameson replied.

"Did you ever read one of their speeches?"

"No."

Mr. Jameson's testimony failed to satisfy members of the committee as to the accounting made for $48,000 of the $65,300 he gave the bishop, and Chairman Caraway indicated that this will be the subject of further questioning when the bishop takes the stand, himself, after his return from the Dallas conference of the Methodist Church South.

Mr. Jameson insisted that all his donations came from his own personal funds. He declared he was actuated in making them by his interest in prohibition, but admitted he had never heretofore made any contributions to dry organizations approaching the magnitude of those given in 1928.

$17,000 On Records.

The official records of the Clerk of the House, which are before the lobby committee, show that the anti-Smith Democratic committee of Virginia on February 11, 1929, reported a receipt of $17,000 listed as "received from James Cannon, jr., donation of E. C. Jameson, New York." This was the day before the bishop sent his wire to Mr. Jameson telling the latter how to report his contributions On the same date, however, the report of the Virginia committee listed disbursements to Bishop Cannon aggregating $17,394.11, which were described as reimbursements for expenditures made previously.

No records have yet been uncovered as to the disposition of the $48,000 other than Mr. Jameson's report, based on Bishop Cannon's telegram, that it was used by the Virginia anti-Smith Democratic committee.

After the hearing yesterday morning the lobby committee recessed until tomorrow, when F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Antisaloon League, is scheduled to testify.

leased, or if released, never would want to see them again. Because of their great devotion to the Mahatma this was expected to have much weight.

Serious disorders occurred in Simla, Calcutta, Rangoon, Lahore and Jullumbur, all of a most disquieting nature.

High officials were not spared. Their motor cars were the objects of onslaughts and in some instances police dignitaries had to resort to the use of pistols in repelling the surging crowds although, according to dispatches, there was no bloodshed from that cause.

The care and attention which the government is giving to its distinguished prisoner was shown in an announcement of a searching examination made of the Mahatma by the special committee of doctors appointed yesterday for that purpose. It was evident that the authorities meant to insure the good health and comfort of their enforced guest.

Demonstration in Bombay.

Down the main streets of Bombay this evening marched an extraordinary procession of Indians carrying banner inscribed with Nationalist slogans.

Six and seven abreast, the demonstrators marched in a solid mass extending for more than a mile. All traffic was held up along the line of march and at all intersecting streets for more than an hour while the marchers passed. Police surveyed the procession closely and maintained order without resort to violence.

Calcutta dispatches indicated that the situation there was causing uneasiness.

Mob Stones Trains.

Detachments from the Eastern Frontier Rifles and 100 men from the Twelfth Frontier Regiment were posted at Howrah, a suburb, where 49 arrests were made as a result of disturbances today. This small city, across the Hoogly River from Calcutta proper, is an important industrial center and a terminus of the East Indian Railway.

Several trains on the railway, outward bound from Howrah, were prevented from leaving a station 14 miles distant by a mob that uncoupled the coaches and stoned them. Special trains containing police and soldiers were sent to the rescue.

The fire still smouldered in the evening. Great numbers of natives were buried in the collapse of a motion picture theater, overwhelmed while the show was going on.

All railway communication beyond Pegu was halted by the collapse of a bridge. Transportation throughout the district was paralyzed.

PROHIBITION BUREAU HAILS NEW WEAPON

Intensive Campaign Planned on Manufacturers of Rum Paraphernalia.

BIG DEALERS FIRST AIM

(Associated Press.)

Armed with a favorable Supreme Court interpretation of the first of a series of controversial questions submitted to it by Attorney General Mitchell, the Prohibition Bureau yesterday laid plans for an intensive campaign against manufacturers who furnish bootleggers with containers and other paraphernalia used in violating the prohibition law.

The decision of the court yesterday that the bureau might seize casks, bottles, corks, &c., that were displayed to attract purchasers who intended to use the materials in the manufacture of intoxicants was described by Prohibition Commissioner Doran as furnishing the weapon his forces needed.

Every offensive angle afforded by the decision will be utilized, he said, and the bureau will proceed at once against every person or firm where the case is similar to that decided by the Supreme Court.

Big Dealers First.

Mr. Doran said the big dealers would be the first objective. Later the campaign will be "carried down the line" to chain stores and small dealers who display bottles, corks, kegs and other supplies to be used by liquor manufacturers.

Attorney General Mitchell, anticipating the transfer to the Department of Justice of prohibition enforcement, asked the Supreme Court for the construction of a number of the more troublesome controversial questions. The decision yesterday was the first of the line to be handed down. It is expected that others will follow before the present term of the court ends in June.

The Department of Justice in the Danovitz case insisted that "it is fair to say that all acts necessary to prepare liquor for sale—from the assembling of the utensils and ingredients to the finishing of the product, bottle or barrel, as the case may be, and labels as desired—are included in the manufacture

Preparations Are Manufacture.

"Those things which a manufacturer customarily does before sale may reasonably be said to be mapufacture," the brief continued.

"Barreling, bottling, capping and labeling, not being a part of the sale, must be a part of manufacture.

"Barreling, bottling, marking, stamping and labeling not only devolve upon the manufacturer, but they were not uncommonly treated by Congress as a part of the process of preparing for the market. The packing of the article has always been treated as an incident of its manufacture.

"When Congress prohibited the manufacture of liquor and of property designed for its illegal manufacture it intended to reach all steps in the actual process up to and including the finished product. Hence the word 'manufacture' was used in its broadest sense, without qualification of amplification."

The home brew phase seemed to the Department of Justice more difficult because the Supreme Court had formerly held that bottles, corks and tin foil were not articles used in the manufacture of intoxicating liquor It contended that the decision which was handed down in the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co. case was "in no way controling of the question in the case of bar" and pointed out that the controversy had been over an interpretation of the revenue act arising out of a claim for drawback on exported beer before prohibition.

ROVER TO BIDE TIME FOR BREW AID RAIDS

District Attorney Awaits a Copy of Supreme Court Decision in Case.

POINTS OUT PADLOCKS

Despite the decision of the United States Supreme Court holding that under the prohibition act it is legal to seize containers, barrels, bottles, corks, &c., when they are offered for sale in such a manner as purposely to attract purchasers who want them for the unlawful manufacture of liquor there will be no intensive drive against these articles in the District of Columbia for the present.

This was indicated yesterday by both United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, who is in charge of the Police Court end of prohibition enforcement.

Lacks Decision Copy.

Both Mr. Rover and Mr. Hart pointed out that the law requires proof of "intent and design" and that the statute does not permit seizures without this proof. Mr. Rover stated that he had not received a copy of the decision and expressed the belief that from newspaper accounts the Supreme Court had in nowise extended the law.

Mr. Rover pointed out also that at present two padlock injunctions are pending against places where the sale of such paraphernalia was alleged. He stated that very shortly he and Assistant United States Attorney Harold W. Orcutt, in charge of padlock proceedings, will file libels against the paraphernalia seized at both these establishments.

Effort Already Made.

Mr. Hart declared that efforts have alerady been made in the District to enforce the phase of the law covered in the Supreme's Court's decision, but offhand could not recall a single instance where there had been a conviction on that charge alone. He stated that he was advising the police not to make any wholesale raids until the court's decision could be studied carefully.

Mr. Hart also expressed the belief that the Department of Justice would issue instructions concerning the enforcement of that phase of the law and intimated that until he received such instructions or was convinced none were forthcoming, that no concerted raids would be inaugurated.

A policeman informed Mr. Hart yesterday that he knew just such a place as covered under the decision, but Mr. Hart told him to leave it alone and that at the proper time he would have it raided.

and other high-ranking admirals to present their views, particularly on the 6-inch-gun cruisers which naval experts have held are unsuitable for our needs," Mr. Britten added.

He predicted that the section of the London treaty providing for the light cruisers carrying 6-inch guns "undoubtedly will be a subject of attack by naval experts as to their practicability, during the hearings before the naval committee."

"I am sure," he added, "the Secretary of the Navy will have no objection to testifying fully before the committee."

At the meeting today of the Senate foreign relations committee will be decided what hearings shall be held by it upon the naval treaty.

Two members of the American delegation to the London parley—Senators Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas, and Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania—are members of this committee and will be on hand to discuss it. The meeting will be in executive session.

Pending the meeting, Chairman Borah, of the committee, said last night he had no plans for hearings. It is considered likely that Secretary Stimson, who headed the American delegation, will be the first heard by the committee, but the State Department Secretary was not invited to attend today's meeting.

After Secretary Stimson has been heard by the foreign relations committee, chairman Hale, of the Senate naval committee, will begin the hearings he has called. Secretary Adams, another of the American delegation will be the first to be heard by the naval committee.

Senator Hale is anxious to question the Navy chief and the American naval advisers about the effect of the London treaty on the naval policy of this country.

At least two weeks of hearings are ahead. Senate leaders believe, before the pact can reach the Senate. Once the foreign relations committee makes its report, leaders intend to give it immediate right of way.

Senaor Reed returned to this country last night aboard the Olympic and was expected to come directly to the Capital.

Grand Jury Begins Crotts Case Probe

Shooting of Man by Gravely Investigated, Despite Latter's Acquittal.

The grand jury investigation of the shooting last March 19 of James Crotts, of Lexington, N. C., by Detective Spottswood F. Gravely, of the Third Precinct, was begun yesterday. Gravely was cleared of a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon in connection with the shooting of Crotts last week by Judge R. E. Mattingly in Police Court, but United States Attorney Leo A. Rover decided to submit the matter to the grand jury despite that. Gravely also was freed of charges before the Trial Board in connection with the same affair.

Crott, John Elgin, Ardie Swortzel and George McVey, who testified at the Police Court hearing, were witnesses before the grand jury yesterday. They are said to have told the grand jury the same stories they related to Judge Mattingly.

Crotts, Elgin and Swortzel were indicted by the last grand jury on charges of conspiracy to extort as a direct result of the shooting of Crotts. The shooting occurred near the house of Rose Marie Foster on First street near U street northwest, who the trio are alleged to have attempted to obtain money from for protection.

New York Pays High Honor To Mothers of War Dead

City and Service Officers Greet Group of 232 Who Are to Sail Today as Nation's Guests to Visit Graves of Sons in France.

New York, May 6 (A.P.).—Mrs. Laura B. Hammers, of Canton, Ohio, never thought that into her life would come a day like today.

In 1918 she thought it hard that her son, Jim, should have to be killed in France—and so soon after his father had died. In Mrs. Hammers' eyes, however, the fact that her boy had given his life for his country did not make her a heroine.

But for her today, in the world's greatest city, flags were unfolded, soldiers stood at attention, bands played the half-forgotten tunes of 1917 and speeches were made.

For she and 231 other mothers tomorrow, on the thirteenth anniversary of the beginning of "the big parade," will sail for France as the guests of their Government to visit the battlefields where their boys died and the graves where they now sleep through eternity.

Through lines of soldiers and sailors and marines, these distinguished guests of New York were escorted today into the City Hall, where high ranking officers of the Army and Navy and officials of the city waited to greet them, and wish them God-speed. Telegrams were read from Gov. Roosevelt, from Senators Robert F. Wagner and Royal S. Copeland and from Mayor James J. Walker, who is in Bermuda recovering from an illness.

Tonight at the Pennsylvania Hotel was held a reception by the New York Gold Star Mothers, and for the eighteen mothers who are making the trip from Florida. Representative Ruth Ryan Owen and Mrs. Arthur Curtis James gave a dinner at the latter's home.

POLICE ARREST TRIO IN TWO LIQUOR RAIDS

Quantity of Alleged Whisky and Paraphernalia Held by Dry Squad.

TRAFFIC JAM RESULTS

Staging a late afternoon and an early night raid on two apartments, Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman yesterday headed his squad in arresting three persons and seizing a small quantity of alleged liquor and miscellaneous property.

Making a sudden foray about 4:30 o'clock at rooms on the second floor of a Massachusetts avenue building at Thomas Circle, above a drug store, the raiders arrested Ernest M. Jefferies, 45 years old, on charges of sale and possession of approximately 40 pints of assorted liquors. They reported seizing a large quantity of bottles, cans, jars, flavoring extracts and various liquor label of many old brands of liquor.

The raid and the presence of a First Precinct patrol at the building attracted considerable attention and jammed traffic at the busy circle for more than a quarter of an hour.

Swooping down on rooms on C street near Second street northeast shortly before 7 o'clock last night, the raiders arrested Bernice Zimbert, 22 years old, and her sister-in-law, Louise Zimbert, 23 years old, on charges of sale and possession of liquor.

Sergt. Letterman said that a purchase was made from the women by a Federal undercover agent a few moments before the raiders effected an entry and seized the pair, who, he said, were struggling fiercely with the Government man in an attempt to pour out 10 gallons of liquor in a large saucepan. He declared that the purchase was made with marked $1 bills. Both women were booked at the Ninth Precinct station.

With Sergt. Letterman were Policeman Richard J. Cox, F. A. Truscott and J. A. Mostyn.

SNAKE CAUSES STIR IN F STREET CROWD

arrival on Washington's Broadway. The cab driver, who apparently knows his snakes, said the serpent was undoubtedly a "Virginia cowsucker." Webster's is not on speaking terms with the name, but Mr. Shackleford is sure of it. Anyhow, the creature looked poisonous, having the diamond-shaped flat head and blunt tail common to reptiles that shouldn't be trifled with.

As to its origin, some suggested that it stepped from the screen at R-K-O Keith's Theater, where the African animal picture, "Ingagi," is just full of snakes of all kinds. Others suggested that it had crawled from a sewer, and some insisted that the "Reds" were to blame.

Nobody fainted when the horrid, scaly thing crawled among the theater crowds, but feminine screams were plentiful and assorted. For a time it looked like a riot.

If there's a moral involved for night club habitues it's think twice before changing bootleggers. That snake that one sees promenading down F street of a night might be a real snake.

YOUTH TRIUMPHS AS RYAN HEIRS GET NEW GUARDIAN

approaching their majority, Elinor being 18 and Joseph 16, would be promoted by the appointment of the new guardian and approved their selection of Clendenin J. Ryan.

Behind the contest was the eternal revolt of youth against old-fashioned conventions and the out-moded customs of another decade. The children, who have been orphans since 1927, when their mother, the former Nannie Morse, died and left them under their grandmother's care, felt that she did not approve of their young friends and could not understand their desire for gaiety.

Against them was their grandmother, who, as is plainly shown in her unofficial statement to the court and in a personal letter to Mr. Ryan, written last November, did not want to deprive them of their amusements, but felt they needed her restraining hand in adjusting themselves to the wealth they acquired under their grandfather's will in 1928.

Her careful supervision of their allowance, as shown in an itemized account of their expenditures from January 1, 1927, to December 13, 1929, bore evidence of this, although she spent $3,747 of her own income in addition to the $31,170 received from their share of the estate. The largest item on the list was a European tour in the summer of 1928 at the cost of $14,615. Clothes for Elinor during the period amounted to approximately $1,013 and for Joseph $761.

Other items which were figured jointly were rental and moving, $4,891; groceries and supplies, $4,817; servants, $2,610; governess, $1,650. There were $35 charges for Joseph's dog and $139 for rental of a piano for Elinor.

While the subject of money was not mentioned in the children's affidavits asking that their uncle be substituted for their grandmother, it is understood that since they have been living in New York (their home is now at No. 1060 Fifth avenue) they have received more generous allowances.

Under Thomas Fortune Ryan's will, which aroused much comment for its virtual disinheritance of his second son, the estranged Allan A. Ryan, Elinor and her brother share equally in five fifty-fourths of the residue, which, although no appraisal of the estate has been made public, is estimated at approximately $28,000,000. A portion of the income from this amount is to be applied to their maintenance and education until they are 21, at which time they will receive the accumulated surplus income and when they are 30 years of age the principal is to be divided between them.

In addition they have an interest in an additional twelve fifty-fourths of the residue, a trust fund from which Mrs. Mary T. Ryan, widow of the traction magnate, receives a life income. On her death this fund is to be divided into 42 shares and the two Ryan children have equal interests in five of these shares, or approximately $5,000,000.

BANK BANDIT KILLED WHEN HOLDUP FAILS

Accomplice Shot as Policeman Foils Pair Attempting Dayton Robbery.

BULLET STRIKES CHILD

Dayton, Ohio, May 6 (A.P.).—An unidentified bank bandit about 35 years old is dead, and his partner in crime, James Royal, 21, of St. Louis, lies in a critical condition in a hospital here tonight from numerous bullet wounds in his body, as the result of the futile attempt on their part to hold up employes of the Xenia avenue branch of the Union Trust Co. here today.

Beyond stating that he met the dead bandit in St Louis several days ago, Royal refused to discuss the bank holdup or to aid in the identification of his companion. Finger prints of the slain robber are to be taken and dispatched to police at St. Louis in an effort to identify him.

No sooner had the pair entered the bank, and, covering Phil J. Kloos manager, and several other employes with revolvers, ordered them to "stick 'em up," than a volley of lead was fired at them by Patrolman W T. Dempsey, who was secreted in a rear room, stationed there in anticipation of such a robbery.

Taken completely by surprise, the bandits, one of whom was struck in the face by a bullet, returned the fire and then fled from the place. Failing to get their own automobile started, the pair ran through an alley to an adjacent street, and seeing Urban Thobe, driver of a truck about to start his machine, attempted to get him to drive them away. Suspecting something wrong, Thobe purposely stalled the engine of his machine. By this time Patrolman Dempsey, armed with a repeating rifle, came upon the pair who started running away again. Another volley from the officer's weapon brought both to the ground.

In the firing one of the bullets ricocheted against a wall and struck Lorene Burton, 3, who was passing the place at the time. She received only a flesh wound in her right knee from the bullet.

BUY IN WASHINGTON COMMITTEE GROWS

Nine Business Men Added to Executive Council at Luncheon Meeting.

CITY CAMPAIGN MAPPED

The names of nine business and trade organization representatives were added to the executive committee of the "Buy in Washington" council at a luncheon session yesterday in the Willard Hotel. A by-laws committee was named, and plans were discussed for a general gathering of members of the affiliated groups in the near future.

New members of the executive committee are Martin Leese, for the Washington Chamber of Commerce; Mark Lansburgh, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association; H. J. Waller, president of the Washington Bankers Association; E. A. Rule, of the Building Trades Employers; R. L. W. Owens, of the Washington Automotive Trade Association; Frank Hight, of the Hotel Men's Association; Normal Kal, of the Advertising Club; Thomas Lane, business agent of the Bricklayers' Union, and Charles E. Young, secretary of the Building Trades Council.

William J. Eynon, president of the Washington Typothetae; E. H. Rosengarten, president of the Building Trades Council, and Louis Rothschild, of the Better Business Bureau, were named on the by-laws committee. E. J. Murphy, chairman of the executive committee, will assist in the formation of a constitution and by-laws.

Upon unanimous vote of the committee, Mr. Rosengarten was elected vice chairman of the executive group, and Mr. Waller will be chosen treasurer upon his acceptance of membership on the committee.

Continued enthusiasm for the movement to keep Washington business in the city was displayed at the luncheon. It was suggested that the council draw up in formal order a statement making clear its purpose and its policies. This is expected to take form at a later meeting.

An educational campaign will be sponsored among the various luncheon clubs. A design for a "Buy in Washington" seal, to be used by all members of the council in their newspaper advertising, was submitted by Mr. Eynon.

Upon his own request Mr. Rothschild was shifted from a regular to an associate member of the council committee.

APRIL GRAND JURY'S WORK ATTACKED

to embezzle $5,000,000 of the funds of the company.

Attacks Made Previously.

Attacks on the validity of the present grand jury already have been launched, but the motion expected to be filed today is the most serious. The other attacks, in the nature of pleas in abatement, challenged the legality of the grand jury on the grounds that the grand jurors were not publicly drawn, that women were not entitled to serve on the body, and that they should not be given the privilege of electing to serve.

In a plea of abatement already filed on behalf of Pitts it was charged that the indictment had been irregularly handed to the foreman of the grand jury; that Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw was in the grand jury room, and that a deputy United States marshal also was present. All these allegations have been denied by the Government.

Attacks have been made on every grand jury since last July, and recently the United States attorney's office has been studying the records, if any, of all persons selected for grand jury service in order to prevent the possibility of any one allegedly guilty of a crime involving moral turpitude from serving.

Pensioner on One, Claim.

The October grand jury was challenged on the ground that a woman pensioner of the Government served on that body and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover was compelled to re-present a number of indictments returned by that body.

Among them was one charging Dexter Churchill Dayton with first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Marjorie O'Donnell. The present grand jury returned a new indictment against him on the charge last week.

Another indictment involved is the one in which three Negroes are charged with first degree murder in connection with the recent slaying of Prohibition Agent York.

We had been on patrol duty off the Virginia Capes for about two weeks, and, as the little subchaser, No. 123, of which I was then a member, could not carry very much, we were running low on food and water. Fortunately, the U. S. S. Rhode Island hove in sight, and we hailed her for a hand-out. They staked us to a tank of water and some "spuds," and, during the process of transferring supplies, the "gobs" and "Girines" aboard the big ship threw in a few "raspberries" about our being way out on the big ocean in our little "canoe."

The gibbing went on for quite a while until some big wise-cracking gob on the Rhode Island said something about our wooden boat. Immediately my buddy (who had been a bank teller in civil life), who was standing by the rail with the bowline in hand drew on a historic quotation and shouted back, "Yes, me lads, up there you have iron ships and wooden men; down here we have 'wooden ships and iron men.'"

Well, that gang threw everything at us but the depth charges, and the "old man" sent down an extra spud or so. He knew his vegetables, likewise his crew.

Fair Exchange

Just after the armistice, soap was one of the many things of which the Germans had none. Hearing that almost anything in Germany could be bought for a cake of soap, I purchased a large box of the pretty scented variety at the Galleries Lafayette and gave it to an American officer who was going into Germany, with the request that he exchange it for war souvenirs—especially helmets or iron crosses.

A few weeks later this officer returned to Paris carefully carrying a plumed helmet in his hand. He had carried the helmet in this way all the way from Germany, but laid it down on a desk at the Louvre Hotel for a moment while he paused at the cigar counter. When he turned around again the helmet had disappeared, but fortunately for me he still retained an iron cross. This he had seen on a German soldier who was glad to exchange it for the much-needed soap. He said to the officer, "I am going to be married tomorrow and I shall give this to my bride as a wedding present. I am sure that she will get nothing she will appreciate more.

During 1918 I was with the Marines stationed at Guantanamo, Cuba, and in May was doing my one month as mess attendant. (Note—every marine gets one month M. A., as part of his regular routine and for it receives $5 extra pay.)

Memorial Day being a holiday, apple pie was served, and I knew from experience that the mess sergeant, whom we called "Spick," would appropriate all that might be left over, to his own purpose of currying favor with the officers.

After the meal the pies were locked up in the ice-box but I found that by twisting the chain attached to the lock the box could be opened and then closed again without detection, and needless to say all the surplus pies disappeared—at least they were hidden from the mess sergeant, under large coffee drums, and subsequently consumed at leisure.

Shortly after the pies had been thus hidden, "Spick" arrived with an officer whom he was eagerly assuring that there was plenty of fine apple pie to be had—until he opened the box and found only empty tins.

Boy! What a how he made. But as only he and the head cook had keys to the ice-box and the cook had an air-tight alibi the circumstance continued to be a mystery.

For the next day or so whenever a mess attendant was called he was found chewing on something or carefully wiping off his mouth. "Spick" viewed these proceedings with the invariable comment, "I know you birds got that pie, but what I want to know is how you did it?" He never found out.

If I may add a little comment—if Lieut. Col. Garland Faye should see this, perhaps he will remember the marine whom he took in his automobile, from the fort to the hospital, when that man was out of his head with fever and had aroused the whole fort. I was that man and I believe that was the last auo ride Lieut. Col. Fay had in Cuba. Here's to him, an officer and a gentleman in every sense of the words.

More Sniping

The story printed in your war story columns about the doughboy who trailed an officer in search of his cigar butt, reminded me of an experience on the little subchaser No. 123, one of six that had been out on patrol duty for three weeks and which was now on the way to port for food and fuel. On board was a crew of gobs desperate for a smoke, as the last known cigarette aboard had been consumed to the last "drag" several days before. As some one remarked we didn't even have a "smoked herring."

Well, the time finally arrived for us who were to go ashore to start "foo-fooing." I was one of the lucky ones and imagine my delight and surprise when in the course of getting my razor out of its hiding place (we seldom shaved when at sea in the small boats), a stump of a cigarette, about two and a half picas long (printers note: 6 picas to 1 inch), rolled out on my bunk.

If Congress should now pass a bill to pay us adjusted compensation this year, I don't believe I would experience the thrill that was mine when I discovered this "butt." And if you might think it exaggeration if I said ten men got a "drag" from those few shreds of tobacco, I'll compromise and make it "thirteen" exactly—"Strange as it may seem."

TERM IS SUSPENDED FOR OLGA EDWARDS

Woman Convicted in Amster Extortion Case Placed on Five-Year Probation.

BOY'S FATE IN BALANCE

New York, May 6. (A.P.).—Convicted of extorting money from Nathan L. Amster, traction magnate, Olga Eide Edwards, former show girl, today was sentenced to from three and one-half to seven years in prison, but the sentence was suspended. The jury which found her guilty had recommended mercy.

Dressed in the shabby clothes she wore at her trial, Miss Edwards received the sentence solemnly.

"May I ask one question," she said to Judge Rosalsky after sentence was passed. "May I go to Europe?"

"I will take that up with the probation authorities," the judge said, after warning her that she must not molest Amster in any way nor exploit herself. She was placed on five years' probation and must stay in this State unless permission is granted to leave it.

Amster, alleged by her to be the father of her 6-year-old son, Lee, was in the courtroom.

The question of the continuance of a $100,000 trust fund Amster had set up for the boy did not enter into the jury's decision. Nor has any action been filed to abrogate it. Miss Amster charged the purpose of her arrest was to relieve Amster of this obligation.

The fate of the boy also was still a matter of speculation tonight, although it was thought he would be returned to his mother's custody.

It was testified at the trial that Amster had paid $170,000 to Miss Edwards over the 13 years since they met at a New York party. That was the only point on which both sides agreed. Amster said he gave her the money, at first in a spirit of philanthropy and later under compulsion of Miss Edwards' threat to create a scandal if he did not.

UPHOLD THE CONSTITUTION.

The Senate has agreed to vote on the confirmation of Judge John J. Parker as an associate justice of the Supreme Court this afternoon. For a week and a half trumped-up charges that Judge Parker is not qualified to sit on the Supreme Bench have been debated. Arguments against the nominee himself have been generously supplemented by attacks upon the Supreme Court, and untenable insinuations against the President.

The few opponents who have tried to confine their remarks to the fitness of the candidate himself have made no inroads against his character, integrity, legal ability or judicial temperament. Those who have attacked the judge on the basis of his decisions have succeeded in demonstrating only their own dissatisfaction with the law and in condemning the judge for following the higher court. Those who have sought to discredit Judge Parker by casting unwarranted insinuations at the President have brought reproach upon themselves.

The balloon which Senator Ashurst sent up to poison the enemy was brought to earth by a colleague in the fight and spilled its venom within his own ranks. The senator sought to discredit the nomination, and the President who made it, by charging that Federal judgeships were being offered as prizes for votes in favor of Judge Parker. He asserts that the charge was not made against the President. But who else has authority to appoint Federal judges? If the charge was based on the statements of some one who has no connection with the White House—which proved to be the case—it should never have been made. The public will be disposed to accept the judgment of Senator Dill, when he declared: "I think this whole matter is ridiculous."

This final flimsy argument against Judge Parker suggests the paucity of material the opposition has to offer against his confirmation. Judge Parker is being used as a tool in a fight against the judicial branch of the Government. The insurgents of the Senate demand a Supreme Court that will be subservient to their economic philosophy. Judge Parker has manifested his ability to uphold the law as it is written, and is therefore not acceptable to the radical element. Efforts are being made to camouflage this assault upon the judiciary, but the people will not be deceived.

If every senator will go to the chamber today with this issue clearly before him and vote in accordance with his own honest judgment there will be no question as to the outcome. Senators who believe in the Constitution and must answer to their constituents for every vote to uphold or ignore that document, will not be found voting with the court wreckers. The independence of the judiciary must be maintained. If the Senate should fail in its obvious duty in this instance it will have a difficult case to handle before the court of public opinion.

SPAIN'S TROUBLES.

All developments in the Spanish political situation seem to be punctuated by republican speeches and student riots. The government has been allowing advocates of a republic and the radical element to let off the steam that accumulated under the rigid censorship of the Rivera regime. But the rioting in Madrid early this week resulted in two deaths and numerous injuries, and the government has decided to employ drastic measures to maintain order.

The immediate cause of this week's disturbance was an address by Prof. Miguel de Unamuno, of the University of Salamanca. It was one of the most vitriolic indictments of the existing government to which Madrid has listened since the dictatorship was abolished. King Alfonso, the professor said, has proved himself unfit to rule. He charged the king with improper conduct and with a lack of dignity. Asserting that Spain can have no republic except through revolution, since the government controls the elections, Prof. Unamuno called upon the people to unite in putting an end to the monarchy.

Student riots preceded and followed the address. Yet the government permitted reports of the address to be published in the press, and did not interfere with the demonstration save to stop the fighting in the streets.

No one can foresee what will come of Spain's political tangle, but apparently the great body of Spanish people is not unduly alarmed about it. The campaign for a republic has gained strength principally among students, educators and a few other leaders of political thought. From this distance they do not appear to be gaining strength.

King Alfonso seems to have a good chance of perpetuating his reign if he removes the abuses of the dictatorship, stamps out communism and restores a representative government. The popular demand is for efficient and responsible government, whether it be under a monarchy or republic. When the existing regime can demonstrate that it is capable of giving that service, the demands of the republicans will probably be quieted.

A NONPARTISAN TREATY.

The London naval treaty, which comes before the Senate foreign relations committee today, will be dealt with on its merits and not as a partisan document. President Hoover does not regard it as a partisan treaty and the American delegation at London, under the leadership of Secretary Stimson, represented the American people without regard to party politics. No charge of partisan politics in connection with the negotiations would be taken seriously by the country.

Fortunately, the Senate has established the precedent of considering important treaties on a nonpartisan basis. The Senate has an enviable record, extending back to the foundation of the republic, for far-sighted breadth of view and patriotism in exercising its solemn duty of giving or withholding its advice and consent to treaties negotiated by the executive branch of the Government.

At times, the Senate may have been overcautious in safeguarding the rights and interests of the United States. It never has permitted its action to be influenced by fear of offending foreign sensibilities. But there is a conspicuous absence of political partisanship in the Senate's record of dealing with the Nation's foreign problems.

The league covenant, brought into being by the genius of Woodrow Wilson, Democratic war President, was opposed by powerful Democratic leaders in the Senate as well as by Republicans. It was opposition from certain Democrats which prevented America from being voted into the League of Nations. Most of the strongest support for the covenant came from Republicans and, at the present time, there are more prominent Republicans in favor of the league brand of internationalism than there are Democrats.

The world court, submitted to the Senate under a Republican administration and supported as a record of Republican achievement, was nullified so far as America is concerned by Republican senators. The resolution of ratification adopted by the Senate in 1926 was framed on the basis of the Swanson reservations, with Senator Swanson, Democrat, seeking in good faith to bring about American adherence to the court. The nullifying fifth reservation, which has kept America out of the world court, was framed by Republicans for the particular purpose of preventing a Republican administration from carrying out its program.

In the coming battle over the naval treaty, Senator Reed, Republican, and Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, will work shoulder to shoulder for ratification. Whatever difficulties the treaty may encounter, they will not come from partisan considerations. Partisan politics in the United States stops at the water's edge.

NO TARIFF RETALIATION.

Fears that the tariff act of 1930 might disrupt the cordial commercial relations of the United States with other nations are relegated to the scrap heap of obsolete theory by Dr. E. B. Brossard, chairman of the Tariff Commission. In an address before the American Academy of Political and Social Science Dr. Brossard points out that the advantages of trade with this country are too great to be disregarded. Conditions in general, he says, will not be greatly altered under the new law.

In spite of all the threats of retaliation from foreign countries while duties were under consideration, the new tariff law probably will not interfere with the enormous foreign commerce this country has built up. The reason is that every other nation protects its domestic industries. The whole world, according to Dr. Brossard, has gone over to protection. European duties were generally increased following the war, and since the United States schedules were adjusted in 1922 the duties of some European countries have been boosted several times. But the evidence does not show that these increases were retaliatory against the United States.

"Neither does the available evidence show that foreign countries, either in Europe or elsewhere, have adopted higher tariff rates in retaliation for the increased rates in the United States tariff act of 1930," Dr. Brossard said. Some increases have been voted against American products, but they have not been more numerous than in periods when no tariff adjustments were contemplated. Friendly commercial relations exist between this country and all the rest of the world. Only three countries give more favorable treatment to other foreign nations than to the United States, while 63 nations accord America the "most-favored-nation" treatment.

Despite the upward tendency of the current tariff bill, the United States admits free of duty a greater volume of products than any other nation, with the possible exception of Great Britain. Two-thirds of all imports still remain untaxed. No nation would risk loss of this great market by enactment of retaliatory duties.

Dr. Brossard disposes of the fallacy that the flexible tariff provision is inimical to the interests of nations that trade with the United States. As a matter of fact it gives foreign producers a better opportunity for open, fair and public presentation of their cases than is granted by any other country. The flexible provision, he says, encourages good will in foreign countries.

In the midst of all the nonsense and vicious propaganda about sacrificing world trade to protect domestic industry, it is reassuring to find an authority on the subject treat it from the standpoint of facts and common sense.

THE CRISIS IN INDIA.

The government of India moved with precision in arresting Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the "peaceful" revolution. In the dead of night he was taken from his bed and transported by motor and train to the prison where he will be held, without trial, until such time as the government chooses to return him to his people. Upon Gandhi's arrest, leadership of the revolution passed to Abbas Tyabji.

Whether the government moved in self-defense because affairs were getting out of hand or whether it made the arrest in the belief that the backbone of the revolution had been broken to the extent that the leader could be interned without untoward effect, is not apparent from a distance. The arrest has been followed by a series of riots and disorders; the military have moved into India and the country, to all intents and purposes, is in a state of war. Certainly the grave crisis that was bound to be the outcome of the "peaceful revolution" is at hand. The next few days will tell if this revolution is to go the way of others that have flared forth momentarily in India or if a genuine war is to be fought.

In the past six weeks, while Gandhi was defying the government without molestation, his lieutenants, one by one, were being rounded up and imprisoned. The spotlight played on Gandhi; the arrest of the secondary leaders of the independence movement was accomplished with comparatively little disorder. Gandhi is put out of the way at a time when those upon whom his mantle normally would descend are also out of the way.

It is apparent now that the government deferred Gandhi's arrest in order, among other reasons, to be able to sequester those who would have been best able to use his arrest to inflame the populace. But Gandhi says: "The leader of this fight is not I but God. He dwells in the hearts of all. If we have faith in ourselves, God will certainly lead us." If Gandhi has been able to implant this faith in the hearts of the poor dumb millions until it is part of their very being, Great Britain has real trouble on her hands.

THE ECONOMIST'S "PROTEST"

From the New York Herald Tribune.

The protest of 1,028 economists against the passage of the tariff act is largely thunder in the index. It condemns higher duties, but specifies no new duties which it considers oppressive. It says: "The undersigned American economists and teachers of economics strongly urge that any measure which provides for a general upward revision of tariff rates be denied passage by Congress or, if passed, be vetoed by the President."

The pending bill is not a general upward revision. It is a limited revision undertaken in order to give increased protection to agriculture and to special manufacturing industries which have been suffering from foreign competition. It is intended to carry out a pledge given in the Republican national platform of 1928, renewed on the stump by Mr. Hoover and overwhelmingly approved by the country.

The argument made by the signers is reminiscent of opposition to protective duties in years gone by. That opposition represented not so much pure economic theory as regional and sectional antagonism. It was genuinely political, since the Democratic party had been for generations the champion of lower revenue duties as against higher protective ones. But now the Democratic party has itself become protectionist. No section any longer sees in protection a peril to its interests. The protective system has become associated with national economic expansion and prosperity to such an extent that no party any longer ventures to attack it. Times had changed when the Democratic candidate for President in 1928 could say in his speech at Louisville: "No revision of any specific schedule will have the approval of the Democratic party which in any way interferes with the American standard of living and wages. In other words, I say to the American workingman that the Democratic party will not do a single thing that will take from his weekly pay envelope a 5-cent piece."

The earlier Democratic argument had been that by lowering duties the workingman would gain more as a consumer than he would lose as a producer. That is still the logic of the economists' manifesto, but it is a logic from which the American public has pretty completely turned away.

The economists have another concern—that fuller protection may interfere with importations and make it harder for European nations to pay their debts to us. This concern was manifested a couple of years ago in an appeal to Congress by economists and university teachers to cancel the American war loans. Much of the argumentation in that address does duty over again in this one. The first fell on deaf ears; the public was unaffected. For similar reasons the second will fall on deaf ears. It has no political or popular backing. It talks a language which the voters no longer understand.

The Fordney-McCumber tariff act—a general and drastic revision upward—was bitterly assailed on its passage eight years ago. Many Republicans thought the rates excessive and too highly experimental in that period of world upset. The feeling against the act was stronger and much more general than the feeling against the Hawley-Smoot tariff rates. But what was the political outcome of our experience with the Fordney-McCumber law? Simply this: that within six years the Democratic party had become a convert to protection. The 1,028 economists dwell outside the sphere of politics and popular feeling. Otherwise they would scarcely have mailed their olympian and transcendental memorial to Washington.

'TWAS EVER THUS.

Miss Alice was fair as a maiden can be
And of lovers had more than a score,
She was wooed by the son of a rich man, and she Had a lawyer who came to adore.

Her parents were pleased with a bond selling lad
Who on Tuesdays and Thursdays appeared,
And they also approved a young doctor who had
An approximate mustache and beard.

There were others with prospects of fortune and fame,
Miss Alice's uncles preferred,
While her aunts would have chosen the boy by the name
Of Adolphus Cape Hatteras, the Third.

But what is there left for her people to say
As the chances she had they recall.
Since Miss Alice, one bright afternoon, ran away
With a boy with no prospects at all?

The Waiter Serves the Dish Ordered, Not the One He Thinks Best.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

YESTERDAY a middle-aged physician said to me: "I once had a considerable practice among the 'new-rich' of my town, but they expected me to be a kind of flunky and never seemed to appreciate anything I did for them. Now I work for middle-class people; and if I don't make quite so much money, at least I get some appreciation. There's no fun in practicing medicine if you can't feel that you are doing some good."

A similar desire to be useful comes to all normal people as they outgrow the selfishness of childhood.

In some degree, perhaps, the desire is inspired by vanity, for all of us covet the good opinion of our fellows and the world praises those who do its chores.

Our heroes are those who rake chestnuts out of the fire for us, and our great men are those who make us a profit.

Knowing this to be true, we may devote ourselves to service in secret hope of applause, for all of our motives are mixed and selfishness is an instinct never wholly subdued.

But the dominating motive that inspires us is the need of preserving our own respect.

A decent self-respect is the only foundation on which man can build a successful and satisfactory life, and when increasing years and wisdom teach him the futility and puerility of a self-centered existence, he looks about for an opportunity to serve because he can not feel respectable if he feels useless.

This zeal for service is a commendable thing—the proof and glory of civilization; but like all zeal its worth to the world depends upon the degree of intelligence that directs it.

Many people, animated by the best of intentions, attempt to serve and merely meddle.

The distinction is clearly defined, so that any person of ordinary sense can discover whether he is serving or meddling; yet service by its very nature is an interference in the affairs of others, and this fact confuses many who wish to do well and leads them into the fallacy that any interference they attempt is service.

Their confusion is unnecessary, for there is a simple way to distinguish between the interference that is service and the interference that is mere meddlesomeness.

You are serving when those you attempt to benefit need your assistance and welcome it.

But if your service isn't needed, or to the best of your knowledge is needed and yet is not welcomed, you are a meddler and a nuisance.

If you would serve a hungry man, let him choose the victuals.

THE ONCE OVER

ELMER TWITCHELL ON MR. DEMPSEY AS A LION HUNTER.

"I see where Jack Dempsey is going to Africa to hunt lions," said Elmer Twitchell, the old-time fight fan as he made a fifth attempt to light a particularly bad stogie. "Well, I don't know how Jack will do against a lion, but I am pretty sure he won't even compare with old-timers like Jeffries, Fitzsimmons, Corbett and Ruhlin. They were the boys who could fight lions!"

* * * *

Elmer sat back in his chair and grew painfully reminiscent of the old-timers. "Why, Jack Dempsey don't belong in the same class with Jeffries in a bout with a lion. You wait for the returns from the first meeting between Jack and one of them animals; he'll be fast and dangerous for a time but if he don't get the lion at once Jack will lose the fight.

* * * *

"Now, Jeffries was different. Jeffries wasn't fast like Dempsey, but he was tough and when he was at his best no lion ever lived that could hurt him. When he was in his prime Jeff wouldn't even been disturbed by a lion. A lion would've took one look at him and jumped out of the ring."

* * * *

"How about Corbett?" Mr. Twitchell was asked.

"Well, he wouldn't have exactly stampeded lions like Jeffries would, but he was one great pugilist in his day and he was too fast for the average lion. I don't say a young vigorous lion couldn't have given Corbett plenty of action, but the day Gentleman Jim met Sullivan at New Orleans he would've won every round from any average lion. He would've had the critter exhausted tryin' to get a claw into him."

"How would Fitz have been against an African lion?" Mr. Twitchell was asked.

"There was a fighter!" declared Elmer. "No lion could have lived in the same ring with him when Fitz was at the peak of his form. It would've been criminal to send a lion into the ring with the Cornishman."

"How do you know? Did you ever see Fitz fight any lions, Mr. Twitchell?" asked the reporter.

"Who, me?" fumbled Elmer, with that strange expression that comes to all veteran fight fans when asked about old-time boxers, "Certainly I saw him fight lions. Lots of times They were his favorite opponents Whenever Fitz wanted a good workout—one that would give him reasonable action without being too strenuous—he would send for an African lion. And it was child's play for him. I never saw Fitz even extended in a fight with a lion."

"How about John L. Sullivan?"

"Ah, the noblest Roman of them all," sighed Elmer. "Well, he always refused to fight lions, but it was only because he was afraid he would kill one some night with one blow."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Pleasant Sights in an Early Morning Stroll—Squirrels, Bears, Senator Borah 'n' Everything.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: That an early morning stroll is good for the soul may be realized in easily accessible parks by dwellers in many thickly populated sections of Washington. This thought strikes me as I enter the Zoo Park by Adams Mill road from the south and descend the picturesque path with its series of rocky stairsteps to Rock Creek a hundred or so feet below. A pause to enjoy the rippling of tiny cascades with their liquiline music which never fails to charm. Then across the Harvard Street Bridge on the way to the bear dens, with glimpses of dogwood actually whiter than snow in the early sunlight. Progress interrupted by a squirrel whose cautious but expectant approach is an irresistible plea for peanuts.

How the birds and squirrels learn that a park stroller is a dietary providence is a mystery, but sometimes the mere motion of the hand as if distributing food will bring them to one's feet.

This morning's attraction is the pair of 15-month-old Alaskan brown bears (Ursus sitkensis) known as Lady Baranof and Admiral Rodman, natives of Baranof Island. Chasing each other with characteristic ursine twists and turns these youthful bruins are well worth the visit. As droll an exhibition of agility as one could expect to see anywhere, on the stage or off. After a parting look at these, we run across a fine figure of a statesman on a horse—Senator Borah at the finish of his usual morning ride along the bridal paths of Rock Creek Park. Hat lifted to the distinguished equestrian, and then to work. ZOOITE.

Dram Drinking Doomed to Pass Out, Like Bear Baiting and Cock Fighting.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me that those people are unfair or mighty thoughtless who say that prohibition can never be enforced, heedless of the lessons of the past. For instance, not many generations ago cock fights and dog fights were common in Washington. When enforcement of the regulations against them was tightened up the friends of law and order were called killjoys who interfered with the red-blooded sport of free Americans, just as in the case of dram drinking at the present time. But now dog fights are limited to the occasional scraps of quarrelsome curs on the streets and roosters are not even allowed to crow within the city limits. Other examples of similar social improvement within a hundred years, more or less, might be named, and with the steady enforcement of prohibition it will only be a generation or so till national dram drinking is as rare as bear baiting.

Credits Prohibition With Saving Human Life as Proved by Insurance Reports.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: Hurrah for prohibition! In the recent hearings before the congressional committee in Washington, John J. Lentz, former congressman and now the president of the American Insurance Union, submitted figures from the experience of 77 leading insurance companies showing that 1914 to 1919 (wet), the death rate ranged from 61% to 63% of the expectancy tables among their policy holders. From 1921 to 1927 (dry), the rate dropped to from 50% to 53% and only once reached 54%.

Mr. Lentz urged that this remarkable saving of human life is alone sufficient to more than justify support of the eighteenth amendment and the vigorous enforcement of the Volstead act.

The American people will indeed be slow in repealing a law that has resulted in such material benefits.

Police and Fire Pay Should Not Be Clipped Down From Increases Proposed in Capper-Zihlman Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I, for one, am opposed to the amendment of Senator Phipp's scaling down the salary raises of officials of the Police and Fire Departments as provided in the Capper-Zihlman bill. The proposed $8,000 salary for the police and fire chiefs is good, but to me it seems niggardly to lop off the $500 from the original sum. And this goes as to the reduction of raises for their assistants. More highbrow efficiency may be necessary in other officials, but the special ability needed in a police chief or a fire chief is just as rare and in every way as important. What the public is most interested in is that the appointing power select the right kind of men for the job. If the chiefs size up to the difficult work they have to perform, they are certainly worthy of their higher salaries.

F. P. JAMES.

Employ "Home Labor" Is Urged, as Well as "Buy in Washington."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the editorial of May 1, under the title of "Buy in Washington," the public is urged to spend money where it is earned.

May I suggest that you present the other side of the question; that is, "Home Employment."

There are a large number of Washington mechanics, carpenters, painters, plasterers, &c., who have had very little work this winter because contracts have been given to outside firms who have brought outside mechanics to Washington at a higher salary than they would have to pay local mechanics. These outside workers naturally send their money back home.

In fairness to everybody, let us see both sides of the question.

COLOR FILM CALLED BOON TO SURGEONS

Advance in Motion Picture Field Depicted Before Engineers Society.

TELEVISION IS DESCRIBED

Amazing developments in motion photography, principally in natural color cinematography of prime importance to the medical profession and in the field of television, gripped the interest of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers in its annual convention in progress here yesterday at the Wardman Park Hotel.

A successful and practical means of making surgical motion pictures in full natural colors as a means of instruction never before attained was portrayed by Harris B. Tuttle, motion picture technician of the Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester, N. Y.

His talk was made in explanation of moving pictures showing in natural colors the removal of a large tumor, a skin grafting operation, and an operation of an injured foot. Delicate rendering of the colors of skin tissues, the blood, the silvery luster of the instruments used, the brown of the surgeon's rubber gloves and other details of the patients and operation room were presented.

Field of Study Broadened.

Mr. Tuttle pointed out that the new development makes possible presentation to medical students of intimate details in connection with operations by the world's leading surgeons, and infinitely broadens the field of medical study.

"With the introduction of panchromatic film the problem of color rendition in monochrome was solved," he declared. "Satisfactory color pictures of operations showing all the primary colors had never been made before the process of amateur cinematography on 16 mm. film was announced in 1928. This process offers a simple, economic and accurate medium for medical color cinematography."

C. Francis Jenkins, of Washington, inventor of television, told the assembly that "20,000 home radio stations are equipped to receive the nightly broadcast of television pictures from the Jenkins Laboratories in Washington."

Advance in Microscopics Told.

Dr. Heinz Rosenberger, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, read a paper stating that microscopic motion pictures recently have been made with magnifications as high as 1,250 times, and with magnifications of 600 times commonly used, as against the usual manification of 60 to 120 times a few years ago.

A feature of the gathering, which will end tomorrow night, will be a banquet at 7 o'clock tonight at the hotel to be addressed by Will H. Hays, "czar" of the movies; Mr. Jenkins and John I. Crabtree, president of the society, with Representative William P. Connery, jr., of Massachusetts, as toastmaster. Mr. Hays' address will be broadcast by the Columbia system at 10:15 o'clock tonight.

Many prominent figures of the industry will be presented in sound pictures at this event, including William DeMille, Milton Sills, Anita Page, June Collyer and Glenn Tryon, and George Eastman, camera magnate.

Capt. Claude C. Bloch To Command Navy Yard

Capt. Claude C. Bloch, of the Naval War College, Newport, R. I., will relieve Rear Admiral Arthur L. Willard as commandant of the Washington Navy Yard on June 12, it was announced yesterday. Admiral Willard will become commander of the scouting fleet, relieving Vice Admiral W. C. Cole.

About five years ago Capt. Bloch served in Washington as chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, Navy Department, with the temporary rank of rear admiral.

Brickbats & Bouquets

—By JAMES HAY, JR.—

OBSERVE this Mr. Clifford Whittingham Beers.

He is a star, satrap and superman among all those amazing persons who have transformed difficulties into stepping stones, risen Phenixlike from the ashes of their own destruction, and, taking running starts from the bogs of obscurity, climbed without the aid of elevators, airplanes or alpenstocks straight up to the glittering top of the Tower of Fame.

Mr. Beers brought into being the first International Congress of Mental Hygiene, in session all this week in Washington, and attended by the leading psychiatrists and psychologists of 37 countries. And how he did it is a tale worth the telling.

About 30 years ago Clifford Beers was busy inhabiting buildings which were then called "insane asylums."

* * * *

BUT he had something on the other inhabitants. His mental illness was of a type which enabled him to remember in every detail what was done to, with and against him by the physicians, attendants and bruisers who had charge of him.

And soon after he was confined, he swore a mighty oath that, when he was discharged cured, he would devote his life to instituting reforms and disseminating propaganda for improvement of the conditions and treatment to which the mentally ill were subjected.

He came forth without money but with his brilliant intellect functioning in high. Moreover, he could write. He produced, and published in 1908, "A Mind That Found Itself," a book which, absorbing as a novel and dramatic as Greek tragedy, exposed things as he had found them during his tenancy of New England "asylums."

It rang the bell. It attracted the attention of the medical profession and of wealthy laymen. In less than a year after its publication Beers had founded the Connecticut Society for Mental Hygiene.

* * * *

THIS was but the first stone in the superb arch of his proposed reforms. He visioned similar organizations in all the States and in foreign countries, a national committee for mental hygiene with headquarters in New York and an international committee.

He worked incessantly, with a flaming enthusiasm born of his resolution to give the mentally ill of the world better housing and scientific care. He raised money. He traveled here and abroad. He interviewed presidents, kings, cardinals and princes. And today his vision has taken on glorious reality.

The national committee for mental hygiene in New York, of which he is secretary, is the world's most powerful agency for better psychiatrical methods.

This week the stars of the nations' psychiatry confer, study and plan along the lines he long ago laid down.

And all this is the noble work of one brave man moved by his own unspeakable agonies to bring relief to the world's most miserable sufferers, the mentally ill.

Institute to Study New Criminal Code

American Law Group Pair Will Submit Findings to Convention.

Proposed statutes to correct defects in criminal procedure throughout the United States will be discussed at the annual meeting of the American Law Institute which convenes here tomorrow. A preliminary reception is scheduled tonight.

The new code, known as the code of criminal procedure, will be submitted by the institute council. It was prepared by William E. Mikell and Edwin R. Keedy, professors of law at the University of Pennsylvania, upon recommendation of a special committee.

Approval of the entire code is expected. The code, which is based upon practical experience in criminal procedure, is the first completed step of the institute to correct the present uncertainty, complexity and delay in American law.

Mexican Town Raided By Defeated Candidate

Mexico City, May 6 (A.P.).—A dispatch to La Prensa from Jojutla, in the state of Morelos, says the defeated candidate for governor, Alfonso Maria Figueroa, led a force in a minor revolt on Saturday, captured the town, jailed the mayor, opened the jail and levied a loan on business.

Irregular troops from Tlalquitenango tried unsuccessfully to drive out Figueroa's rebels, but were repulsed with two killed. Federal troops reached the city on Monday and recaptured it, taking 40 rebel prisoners. Figueroa escaped.

Paris Stirred As Mrs. Borah Visits Abroad

Senator's Wife Declines to Comment on Politics.

By JEAN ELIOT.

ALTHOUGH Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the Senate, has never set foot in Europe, he ranks with Col. Lindbergh and Henry Ford as one of the Americans best known to Europeans. Consequently the arrival of Mrs. Borah in Paris on the first lap of a "vagabond journey" abroad, caused something of a stir.

She was immediately beset by reporters, smilingly but firmly refused to talk and then compromised, agreeing to grant interviews if she could do it without direct reference to the political situation in the United States. "It may seem paradoxical," she is quoted as saying, "but although politics is my hobby and my deep interest, I never give political interviews. One never knows how they might be interpreted."

However, apropos of Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick's recent victory in winning nomination for the Senate, Mrs. Borah willingly expressed her belief that women had already demonstrated their fitness for a place in the political life of the nation. "Really," she said, "I think women have just begun. Just how they will develop nobody can foresee. But the time is gone when it was generally felt—by men—that no place was open for women in the legislature or in any important governmental body. I do not say that their functions will be those of man, but they are sure to develop increasing importance as political progress continues."

Genuinely delighted at Mrs. McCormick's success in the primaries, Mrs. Borah spoke enthusiastically of her chance of election. "You see," she went on, "Mrs. McCormick is one of my closest friends and I know perhaps better than most how worthy she is to hold office."

Asked about prohibition, Mrs. Borah gave evidence that she might be interviewed on any subject with safety to herself. She said:

"Don't you think it's too near elections? I can not make any statement on that subject except to say that the question seems to be growing more and more pivotal in political platforms. As to the fact of prohibition itself one can see great good from it and one can see harm also, I dare say. Politically, however, I have no opinion to offer."

Traveling in Europe with Mrs. Jerome Day, an old friend, Mrs. Borah proposes to be unimpeded by definite plans. They will make Paris their center of operations, taking short trips to Germany, Italy and England, and going and coming as the spirit moves them.

The Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, and his sister, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, were the guests in whose honor Mr. and Mrs. William S. Corby entertained at dinner last evening. Senator Reed Returns From Naval Parley

American Delegate Will Reopen His Residence in Capital.

Senator and Mrs. David Aiken Reed, who landed yesterday in New York, are expected in Washington today and will reopen the house at 1904 R street, which will be their home until the house they are building is completed. After the close of the London naval conference, to which Senator Reed was a delegate, Senator and Mrs. Reed made a short trip to the south of France.

The last member of the American conference delegation to return to this country, Senator Reed will probably be accorded just such a welcome as was extended to Senator Joseph T. Robinson on his first appearance in the Senate after his return from London. Senator Robinson "stopped the show," his colleagues leaving their seats and forming in line to greet him as he stood beside Vice President Curtis below the rostrum.

Mrs. George Mesta will go to New York today and on her return on Sunday will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thieriot, of New York. Mrs. Mesta will go to Louisville with Mr. and Mrs. Thieriot for the Kentucky Derby, the party leaving Washington next Monday in Mr. Thieriot's private car. They will visit Hot Springs en route.

Mrs. Harriman Russell will arrive from New York on Sunday to visit her mother, Mrs. Borden Harriman, at her country home on Reservoir road. Mrs. Harriman expects to spend the greater part of the summer in Washington, her house on a hilltop being an ideal summer residence.

Mrs. Marian Cran, an Englishwoman, who is recognized internationally as an authority on garden lore, gave a lecture yesterday morning at the Washington Club before an interesting—and interested—audience. Her talk was illustrated with slides and she showed fascinating pictures of South Africa, with its famous blue gardens; Vancouver, whose tulips rival those of Holland, and Australia, with its gorgeously colored azalea trees. There were also interesting views of the seventeenth century house in England, which Mrs. Cran has recently restored, taken before the work was begun and after it was completed.

Mrs. Charles Liebermann Shepherd, who has been ill for some time, has returned to her home, where she is recuperating.

Brig. Gen. Dion Williams, U. S. M. C., has arrived in New York aboard the Toloa from Nicaragua, where he has been serving for over a year.

Chief Justice Will Sail for Europe Soon

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes to Return to Capital in September.

Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes will sail for Europe in June and consequently have decided not to move until autumn into the house at 2223 R street which they have purchased as a permanent home. During the summer months extensive alterations will be made and the house will be ready for them in September. Meanwhile they have an apartment at the Mayflower, but Mrs. Hughes and Miss Elizabeth Hughes have spent most of the spring season at their home in New York. No date has been set for the marriage of Miss Hughes and Mr. William Thomas Gossett, which was announced recently, but it will not take place for some time.

Miss Helen Cannon who occupied the house Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes have purchased for the winter months, will sail today for Europe to join her nieces, Mrs. Dorsey Richardson and Mrs. William Houghteling. Mrs. Richardson came to Washington last winter to visit Miss Cannon and was detained for several months by illness. However, she has recently rejoined Mr. Richardson at their home in Paris and Mrs. Houghteling, who lives in San Francisco, is visiting them.

Dr. and Mrs. B. Bourland Griffith have sent out announcements of the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Caroline Martin to Mr. William Rufus Scott on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott will be at home after May 25, at 1726 M street.

Representative Underhill will return to their apartment at the Hotel Roosevelt after a visit of a few days. Mrs. Underhill will remain in the North, where Representative Underhill will join her after Congress adjourns.

Children to Compete At Riding School.

An interesting program is listed on the morning card of the society horse show to be held at the Preece Riding School next Saturday at 10 o'clock. The children will compete in eight classes and keen competition is promised in all events, as the best juvenile riders in the Capital have entered their mounts. There will be two contests to determine the "best rider" of the show, one for children 9 years and under, the other for children from 10 to 15 years.

Among the children who will ride in these two classes are the three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Noyes, Newbold, jr., Crosby and Tommy; Wallace and Celeste Wakem, children of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Wakem; Margaret Hill, diminutive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hill, who has entered her pony, "Winnie-the-Pooh;" Marilynn Himes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Himes, who will ride her pony "Peggy;" Persis and Louise Myers, who will ride their thoroughbreds; Mary and Sarah Meigs, twin daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Meigs; Stellita Stapleton, daughter of Mrs. Daniel C. Stapleton, and Frederika Albright, daughter of Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Owen S. Albright, one of the best equestriennes in the Capital.

Sterling silver trophies will be awarded by the committee to all the winners in each class.

Yesterday the children of Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, John and Baisie, entered their ponies in various of the events, and the spectators are assured of many a thrill in the opening jumping class in which these two will compete. Both are at home in the saddle, having ridden since they were tiny tots on the Wyoming ranch where they spend their summers.

Miss Annabel Matthews, of the United States Board of Tax Appeals, will entertain at a tea at her home, 3018 Dumbarton avenue, this afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock, in honor of the Brenau Club of Washington, to which she invites all former students of Brenau College of Gainesville, Ga., who are in Washington.

Mrs. Charles O'Day was hostess yesterday at a luncheon given at the Congressional Country Club in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Stanley P. Woodard and Mr. Stanley D. Woodard.

Prince's Home In Rome Taken By U. S. Envoy

Garretts Will Embark for America to Spend Summer.

One of the most magnificent palaces in Rome, formerly occupied by Prince Jovanelli, has been leased by Mr. John W. Garrett, United States Ambassador to Italy, for a five-year term. Boasting 50 rooms, the new quarters will house not only the ambassador's family, but the embassy offices and the consulate. Fortunately for the United States, the present Ambassador to Italy is blessed with an ample fortune and is able to maintain an embassy in fitting style.

Although their home is in Baltimore, Mr. and Mrs. Garrett have lived much in Washington. Mrs. Garrett is a daughter of the late Mrs. Benjamin H. Warder and a sister of Mrs. Harry Leonard. Mr. and Mrs. Garrett expect to sail for home shortly on leave and will probably spend most of the summer at Evergreen, their beautiful old estate near Baltimore.

Since going to Rome the Garretts have made the American Embassy, heretofore established in the Piazza San Bernardo, famous for the lavishness of their hospitality. Official entertaining in Rome is always done in the grand manner and Ambassador and Mrs. Garrett have believed in doing as the Romans do when in Rome. They have maintained liveried ushers and footmen who, who, although they seem modest beside the birds of paradise the other embassies show, or compared to the splendor of the papal court, would cause a sensation here or in the Garrrett's home town of Baltimore.

Among well-known members of the younger set who have recently joined the debutante committee for the patriotic peace ball are Miss Vittoria Catalani, Miss Katherine Adams, Miss Clara Bolling, Miss Dorothy Dodge, Miss Joselyn Hibbard, Miss Betty Bartholomew, Miss Junia Culbertson, Miss Elvira Johnson, Miss Maria de Medina, Miss Marie Sacasa, Miss Marjorie Talman, Miss Barbara Vandenberg, Miss Helen Walker, Miss Martha Wren and Miss Margaret Olmstead.

Recent additions to the junior committee include Miss Henrietta Allen, Miss Adair Childress, Miss Adelaide Childress, Miss Elise Alexander, Miss Catherine Fechet, Miss Blanca Huerta, Miss Marian Jardine, Miss Lalla Lynn, Miss Norvell Munford and Miss Mary

A Balanced Meal in the Shortest Time!

IT seems impossible—doesn't it?—to actually prepare a complete, well balanced meal by just heating a can—a meal that is not only delicious, but contains all the vital elements needed by growing children as well as adults.

And yet it is being done every day in countless homes throughout America. Here's the secret. Serve Mueller's Cooked Spaghetti as the main dish. This body-building, energy-making, palate-teasing food comes to you already cooked and in a sauce of luscious, healthful ingredients—of tomatoes and other fresh vegetables and mellow, tasty cheese. It is prepared in sunlit kitchens, under the most modern, sanitary conditions.

Not only is Mueller's Cooked Spaghetti easy to serve; it is, in itself, a balanced meal, containing, in correct proportions, precious vitamins for health and growth—protein for body building—carbohydrates for energy—mineral salts for the blood, bone and teeth. Mueller's Cooked Spaghetti is made from a special blend of farina—the heart of the wheat—a cereal so easily digested that it is usually the first solid food given to infants.

Health, Energy and Tasty Appeal

Think of preparing, in so short a time, a meal that contains all the energizing elements of meat in a far more digestible form. The thick, delicious sauce derives its rich consistency entirely from the choice tomatoes and other fresh vegetables and the zesty, thoroughly aged cheese used in making it. No "filler" is added; no artificial coloring or preservative.

A Convincing Test

Just make this test today; get a can of Mueller's Cooked Spaghetti from your grocer. Place it in boiling water. While it is heating, set the table, cut the bread, put down the coffee and fix the dessert. Then open the can, pour its savory contents into a dish and call the family—the meal is ready.

And what a meal! You will receive many a hearty compliment when you serve it. You will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have served a healthful, satisfying, balanced meal to your family and you'll be fresh and ready to enjoy the evening.

It Stands Supreme

Keep half a dozen cans of Mueller's Cooked Spaghetti in your pantry at all times. You will find them most handy when unexpected guests arrive—when you come home tired after a day of shopping—when it's too hot to spend hours over a stove—for a tasty midnight supper—and on other occasions when you want to prepare a delicious, balanced meal at a moment's notice. Your first experience with this tasty, healthful food will quickly show you why it stands supreme.

Ask your grocer for Mueller's Cooked Spaghetti today. He has it or can get it for you.

MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI EN CASSEROLE WITH LEFT-OVER MEAT

1 Can Mueller's Cooked Spaghetti; 1½ Cups left-over meat; 2 Tbsps. melted butter; ½ Tsp. salt; ⅛ Tsp. pepper; ½ Cup buttered bread crumbs.

Remove cooked spaghetti from can. Combine left-over meat, cut into small cubes, with melted butter, salt and pepper. Place layer of cooked spaghetti in well-greased casserole, then layer of left-over meat mixture. Alternate layers with cooked spaghetti on top. Cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake in moderate oven for 20 minutes.

Another simple way is to remove the Cooked Spaghetti from the can, place it in a baking dish, spread a few slices of bacon on top, and put in the oven to heat.

The Rainbow's End is within Your reach

DID you ever feel so desperate you wanted to jump out of a window? That's the wrong end of the rainbow.

Ill health is a burden on body, mind and friends. But Nature never fails to signal her dangers. Lack of appetite, flabby flesh, loss of strength and skin troubles is a warning from Nature. This is her way of pleading for help.

The basic requirement for good health is rich, red blood—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

Thousands of people have a low blood count—to this may be attributed "run down" systems, skin troubles, and even more serious ailments.

It is dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal.

When S.S.S. is indicated in your case you owe it to yourself and friends to try it.

A CLEAR SKIN COMES FROM WITHIN

If you desire firm flesh, a glowing complexion, energy, vitality and the blessings of health you must keep your blood in good condition.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It gives to Nature what it needs to build you up so that your system may throw off the cause.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

Take S.S.S. daily at mealtime. It helps Nature build rich, red-blood-cells. It is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test for over 100 years. All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

S.S.S. Makes You Feel Like Yourself Again

Many a Memo is made during the Vita-Minutes

"Order coal"—"See if Smith is back"—"Buy shoes"—"Check into real estate improvements near our property"—"Barber"—scores of items for the day's program may come up in any morning's reading of the paper.

From both the news and the ads come things that get themselves into plans for the day. A sentence reminds you that this is the middle of the month—and suggests something that you want to make a memo of. A news item gives you an idea about an opportunity you might seize—and there's a memo. An ad reminds you that you've been intending to buy shoes, or a gift for someone, or a hat. Another memo is made.

Notice how often it is in the morning that such things occur to you. As a matter of fact, it is because your mind grabs at things more quickly, disposes of them with a decision more readily, during the Vita-Minutes hours. Anybody's mind works better after a night's sleep than after a day's work; and everybody is readier with a decision when mind is free than when it is preoccupied with other things.

Hence the power—the extra power—of an advertising suggestion during the Vita-Minutes. It catches you when you're willing to look at it, and when it's easiest for you to pass on it—and make a memo. Then, the memo once made, it is on your day's program, and the chances are that it will get attention before the day is over.

The Post is a newspaper which is expected and received in the homes of Washington in the early morning—during the Vita-Minutes hours. Advertisers in The Post not only reach a large percentage of the homes that do most of the buying, but they reach those homes during the Vita-Minutes, when minds are fresh, the day's program is being made, and memos for the day's activities and purchases are being written.

Take Advantage of Vita-Minute Power In The New Post CLASSIFIED SECTION

The logical arrangement of classifications in this new section and the A-B-C order of every offering makes it most easy for readers to find the article of which they are in search . . . IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

WILL HUTCHINS, head of the department of fine arts at American University, is busily engaged now with the final rehearsals for the annual Shakespearean play, this time "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and, he writes, "I am having a wig made for Puck, which is to be as nearly as possible an imitation of your hair." That, to be sure, will be a sight for the gods.

* * * *

JUST to show that mystery plays still have their pulling power, the National Theater Players are doing a land office business this week with "Wooden Kimono," a play that Clifford Brooke, the director, describes as spine-agitating, rib-tickling and goose-fleshing—which makes it sound like something quite spooky. It is, so the customers state, about the best of the season so far.

* * * *

EVEN though almost every theatergoer in Washington has seen "Abie's Irish Rose," at one time or another, the play is doing what Mr. T. D. Bonneville describes as good business at Poli's. It played here a season or so ago, and before that had a twelve-week run at the old President Theater. Nevertheless, it is Mr. Bonneville's contention that "Abie" can go into a second week even now—and he is willing to make a wager on that score. The present cast boasts of several players who started out with the play eight years ago on Broadway.

* * * *

WHEN the National Theater Players essay "Salt Water," the Frank Craven comedy, next week, Miss Marion Sterly, the ingenue, will have her first part in several weeks. She has been standing on the side lines, these several weeks past, watching the other players romp through their roles. Harold Phillips, the publicist, claims that the gallery gods will have every reason in the world to set up a general shout of approval when Marion comes back to stage life next week.

* * * *

PLAYING Washington as a one-night stand, George C. Tuler, the producer, is sending his all-star cast here next Sunday night for what he hopes will be a memorable performance of Sheridan's great comedy, "The Rivals." Only four more days in which to get tickets, this is merely a warning to those who have a penchant for postponing till tomorrow what should be done today. Unless the coveted pasteboards are gathered in pronto there are going to be some heartbreaks Sunday night when the curtain goes up.

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

Traffic regulations of the District of Columbia specify that the registration card must follow the car. Regardless of who is operating the vehicle, he must have the card handy in case a policeman asks to see it. Like an operator's permit, it must be carried.

Example—A woman asks her son to drive her car around the block while she runs into a store. She has the registration card in her purse. The son, returning to the store, parks double for a moment as he waits for his mother. A policeman comes up and asks to see the registration card. The youngster has violated the law in being unable to produce it.

Occurring One Day Ahead of

DISTRICT DAY

"... the sale of 10,000 bargains"

We know that we can never serve in one day the enormous number of people who will attend our "District Day," so, to relieve congestion and provide more comfortable shopping conditions, we have arranged a special "Day of Courtesy" on Thursday, May 8

You Can Buy Tomorrow at "District Day" Prices!

It is our plan to distribute on "Courtesy Day" and "District Day" merchandise of fashion, quality and desirability at the year's lowest prices. This means an immense saving in money for the public, which, we are sure, will be more than welcome to people who are being very careful in their expenditures at this time.

Every Department in the Store (Upstairs, Basement and Bargain Annex) Will Participate in "Courtesy Day"

For Women

Coats, Suits, Dresses, Shoes, Lingerie, Furs, Hats, Sweaters, Corsets, Hose, etc.

Let Everybody Come!

Let the city and surrounding suburbs and vicinity awake to the great opportunity that The Hecht Co. is opening before them. One of the greatest sales ever held in Washington. And if you doubt this now . . . your eyes and sense of values will tell you that it is true when you come here. You can well imagine what we have done to prices in order to accomplish such a dramatic feat.

FOUR WAYS TO BUY!

1. Our Stamp Certificates

A "Stamp Certificate" means that you receive a book of certificates which is recognized the same as Cash in any department of the store. For this service a small fee is charged.

2. Our "Budget Payments"

3 Our Charge Accounts

Regular charge customers are billed monthly. An account of convenience. For this service there is no charge whatsoever. One of the most popular ways of buying.

4. Or Pay Cash, If You Prefer.

New Accounts Office—Main Floor

Please Observe These Rules When Shopping

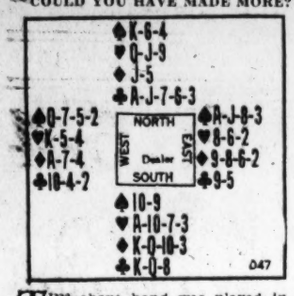
WORK ON BRIDGE

COULD YOU HAVE MADE MORE?



THE above hand was played in a game of Auction. South's one No Trump was the final bid.

West led the Deuce of Spades, dummy played small and East played the Jack. Then, to establish West's Spades, East led the Ace to trick 2 and a third Spade to trick 3.

When discarding on the third Spade, South, who could be sure of five Clubs, one Spade and one Heart, had to choose between parting with a Heart and a Diamond. Three Diamonds could be made after the adverse Ace was extracted, and three more Hearts could be captured should the Heart finesse succeed. If West held the Ace of Diamonds and two more Spades, game could not be made by running the Diamonds; but West's original lead of the Deuce of Spades showed that he had led a four-card suit and had only one more Spade. If the Heart finesse was tried and failed, game would be lost; so South discarded a Heart and ran five Clubs, discarding two more Hearts on dummy's fourth and fifth Club. Then he led a Diamond from dummy which West won and cashed his last Spade; but Declarer made the rest of the tricks and game.

Could you have made more?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The Declarer played the hand perfectly; East did not. East should have appreciated that a four-card suit had been opened and should have reasoned that game probably could not be saved unless all four Spades were captured. As the Spades played on the first trick were the Deuce, Four, Jack and Nine, he could tell that West had the Queen and two others, and that South was left with the singleton Ten; so East should have led a Diamond (trick 2), hoping that West would win and continue with the Queen of Spades through North's remaining King-Six. Played in this way, it would be immaterial whether dummy played King on West's Queen; the adversaries must take four Spade tricks in addition to their Diamond Ace, and save game.

If the game had been Contract, and South had bid one No Trump, North would have bid three and the playing situation would have been the same. If at Contract South started by bidding one Diamond, North would become a three No Trump Declarer and a Spade would be opened by East up to North's King. Whether the lead was a four or five card suit would not be disclosed immediately and Declarer would run his Clubs first and be guided by the adverse discards in selecting his next lead.

Dare INTERPRETS the MODE

Paris, May 6.

I GUESS the reason that we usually neglect our June brides in this column is because it never accurred to us that modern women make much of a fuss abaut getting married, especially in June. But I guess they do, so we'd better scare up a June bride or so for your amusement.

Lanvin, Molyneux and Patou had the most breath-taking "brids" you ever saw, while strangely enough Redfern went in for bridsmaids in a big way, and nary a bride. Lanvin's bride departed from the time-honored white and even the tentative peach and rose shades, and appeared in a pale steely blue lame, very medieval in line, with the effect heightened by a very long veil of the same lame, held at either end by two page boys. No flowers would ever be held by a Lanvin bride, and a coronet of blue pearls would hold her veil in place.

Molyneux's bride has an equally long veil, but it is of tulle, as is Patou's. The former carries a beautiful bunch of white velvet lilies, tied with white satin ribbon, a fancy which struck me as particularly modernistic and charming. And almost all of the brides had long sleeves.

Redfern's bridesmaids wore large hats of crin rolled up off the face in a very mushroomlike effect, and the dresses were of pastel shades.

Remember I told you that the "big hats will get you if you don't watch out" . . . well, the little meline ones for dressy wear will, whether you watch out or not. It's just a question of whether you want to pay big money for them, or make them yourself the Dahrray way. And I guess you know by this time that you just have to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, and the illustrated leaflet will be yours, to do with as you will. You may choose to make one, you may choose to make all the models in it, but in any case you'll never find a less expensive or easier way to get yourself hatted in the right way.

You surely have to have just one black taffeta in your summer evening wardrobe! Every smart French couturier has one in his repertoire, every elegant Parisienne in hers.

I have sketched Joseph Paqin's for you today, and sh-h-h-h, you all know the smart lady who has it in her wardrobe! I ask you, if you had seen those red, green and yellow flowers rambling around on this dress. Could you have stopped to figure out such a mundane thing as a bank balance?

Don't forget that we recommend the weekly Dare fashion letter for you to read every Sunday in The Washington Post.

Au revoir!

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

MAY TIME IN THE GARDEN.

DO not forget that manure in liquid form poured around your early-blooming perennials is almost sure to increase the size of the flowers.

May is the month to begin mowing new grass. Start as soon as the blades are long enough to reach between the knives of the mower.

If you are using any commercial fertilizer at this time, or in fact, any time, be careful not to permit it to collect on the foliage.

This is a good time to spray your roses for aphids. Nicotine is a good spray for this purpose.

May is the month to stake your peonies. If you desire unusually large flowers, you will likely have to resort to disbudding.

When starting cannas, which you may safely do at this time, it is wise to prepare the holes for these tubers beforehand. The same method applies to dahlias.

It is well to mulch all newly planted trees with a grass or peat-moss covering. This will aid in the conservation of moisture.

Pot roses may be planted as late as the middle of May.

As you transplant your annuals from the flats in which you started them into the open border, why not refill the boxes with fresh soil and begin to sow perennials?

Tomorrow begin to stake perennials.

About the 20th of May you may with safety set outdoors all tubbed plants. After they are in the open give them a little fresh top soil and a little liquid manure. This will assist them in starting new growth.

If your delphiniums begin to show traces of blight, begin to apply dry bordeaux mixture about the crowns at once, or if it seems easier, give the plants a weekly spraying of ammoniacal copper carbonate. In fact, it will be well to keep affected plants covered with this spray from early spring until fall.

If you suspect that blight is in your soil it will be well to use bone-meal as a fertilizer instead of manure.

If you have a tree on your lawn that isn't doing all you feel it should, dig a circular trench 4 feet away from the trunk and fill this with well-rotted manure and good loam.

All reader's questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"TAURUS."

IF May 7 is you birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 12:45 p. m., from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

The influences for this date are not stimulating, and there is nothing of a spectacular nature augured. "Only that day dawns to which we are awake." Everything is likely to go on "as usual," with exceptionally few hindrances. Mental depression.

Children born on this May 7 will show strong individualities at an early age, and indications of what the future man or woman will be. They will have splendid ideals, and will be very clean minded and open minded. They will have courage, both physical and mental.

You are a practical minded "Bohemian." You find the realities of life both satisfying and pleasing, and it is seldom that you are enticed into a fool's paradise. Common sense intervenes at the last minute. You have few if any ultra vices or virtues, and probably herein lies the secret of your calm voyage through life. This does not mean that you have the temperament of an oyster or that an imagination does not help to color your existence. Few prejudices enter into your relationships with people, and your friends are a very cosmopolitan crowd. Your charity is born within your heart, and your sympathies are widespread.

You are an easy and efficient worker, although you are not overcareful or exaggeratedly conscientious—you do your best and feel satisfied at that. You were fortunately born without an anxious temperament, and your mind is usually in a relaxed state. Your nerves are usually in a healthy state, and your disposition at par. Those who know you can usually bet on your reactions, because you are seldom "different." You are not a hypocrite, and you are not a snob. You have very sensible ideas about home-life and marriage, and yours should be a success. In your quiet way, you are quite a philosopher.

Successful people born May 7:

1. Robert Browning, poet.
2. William Bainbridge, naval officer.
3. Anton Seidl, musician.
4. Col. Albert L. Mills, superintendent of U. S. Military Academy, West Point.
5. Joe Cannon, former Speaker of Congress.
6. Lord Rosebery, English statesman.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Urges Her to Drink."

DEAR Miss McDonald: My daughter is a quiet girl of 19 who never drinks, smokes or misbehaves. Two men claim to love her. One preferred by her boasts of his past and of the "wild times" he has with other girls. The other is quiet, devoted, says little, but is working to make a home to offer her. Don't you think she is doomed to misery to listen to the first, and consider marrying him? Could any man "love" a girl and tell her of such behavior as he tells of? Could he ever become a good husband? The other one frankly tells of his love, shows it and admires her, praises her and hopes to marry her. Do you think he really is in love with her? She doubts this, saying he is too "calm" about it. He doesn't believe in a girl going on petting parties, smoking and drinking, while the other young man urges her to do this and writes her about the good times he and his friends have and what she misses by being so "cold." I am worried for I am afraid she will regret marrying this one.

Let me know what you think of the two men. I never have had a moment's anxiety about her before.

MOTHER

The man who advertises his exploits with women makes just about the worst possible husband because he is the worst possible sort of man. Men who are known among men for that sort of caddishness are ostracized by other men because real men have sufficient discernment to see them as the plague they are. But women? Never. The self-advertising nit-wit who sprawls upon the sofa three nights a week and tells some fair young thing what a riot he is with the women usually is not even tolerated by women—but the fair young thing drinks in every word and considers him dangerous—and that's enough.

If a man of that type kisses some silly schoolgirl on Monday, he is telling by Wednesday what a time he had with a dangerous divorcee who simply wouldn't let him leave her till he promised to marry her within the week. They even believe their own stories. Usually sooner or later the girl wakes up and the superlover has to look up another house to get his Sunday night suppers. But if nothing happens to save her, and fair young thing decides she must protect this man from all those wicked, designing women by marrying him, she soon begins to learn a few things.

In the case of your daughter the fact that the man urges her to go out on drinking parties should be sufficient proof that she means nothing in his life. This fact should save her. For he probably would disappear promptly if he even suspected she was considering marrying him, unless indeed money is involved.

Just give her plenty of chance to compare her two admirers, use no force and if she is the intelligent girl you describe, her lasting interest will be with the man who is a man, and not a lizard.

The Goofus Imp

The Goofus Imp is not malicious,
Nor would I call his actions vicious.
He's just annoying, that is all,
And likes to make small children bawl
By nibbling at their hands and feet,
Which irritates like prickly heat.
So if your kids are young as yet
I'd recommend some other pet!

Eczema on Boy's Head Lasted Ten Years. Healed by Cuticura.

"Eczema started first in a round spot about the size of a dime on my boy's head. Gradually it spread and finally covered the top of his head. It itched badly and when he scratched sore eruptions formed. The trouble lasted ten years.

"I used everything I heard of but nothing helped him. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. Later I purchased more and in a short time he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Virginia E. Golder, 833 Vine St., Baltimore, Md.

Why Kotex gives you such a safe, secure feeling

How the scientific design and wonderful absorbency of this sanitary pad provide protection that lasts.

YOU will wonder, once you've used Kotex, how you ever managed to get along without it. For here is sanitary protection that is designed to fit; designed to protect comfortably for hours.

Naturally, one feels safe, secure—because Kotex is made of a marvelous absorbent called Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding. Cellucotton is a cellulose substance which, for sanitary purposes, performs the same function as the softest cotton, with five times the absorbency. That means five times the security.

Hospitals prefer it

Throughout America, the leading hospitals (85% of them) now use Kotex absorbent. This preference of hospital authorities should guide every woman's choice of sanitary protection.

What does one seek, besides quick, thorough absorbency? Softness, for one thing. And Kotex offers a lasting softness—not a mere surface downiness which soon packs into chafing hardness.

Kotex is adjustable. You can remove layers of the filler. It may be worn on either side—doesn't have to be used in a certain specified way. You get the same, complete protection.

The fact that Kotex is so easily disposed of has changed the hygienic habits of millions of women the world over. Kotex Company, Chicago, Ill.

KOTEX IS SOFT...

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

3—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly by a special process.

4—Disposable, instantly, completely.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

NATS REGAIN LOST LEAD TO WIN FROM TIGERS, 5-4

Pegler

NEW YORK, May 6.—A frisky old party comes into the sport department now and again to drop a hand-wrought piece for the paper on the copy desk stating that Dan O'Leary, now 90 years old, who reckons that he has walked the equivalent of a dozen times around the world, will circle the bases at the town ball yard four times in five minutes for a modest purse. Mr. O'Leary seems to have plenty of get around left in those dogged old dogs of his, for he walks the bases without the aid of crutch, cane or nurse, and it just seems that he has been walking so long that he can't pull up to a full stop, even when some one unsheathes a newspaper mud pencil, points to a chair and says, "Sit!"

He is the first one of the boys who come into the sport departments to drop small writings on the copy desk that I ever saw who does not sit with alacrity at the word of command.

Now, there is Mr. One-Eyed Connelly, itinerant who has made a vocation of going places and seeing things as the guest of the human race, no hosts barred. Mr. Connelly sits instinctively, without invitation or provocation, and he has sat in almost every sport department in this land, pouring out his reminiscences, some few of which, I am forced to suspect, never happened, although he vows they did with that horrible solemnity which marks the oaths of the boys in the sport business when they are affirming trivial matters.

Prize Fighters' Vows Often Morbid.

Did you ever hear a prize fighter state upon his word of honor that he busted his hand in the fourth round? They conjure the most morbid penalties, such as "I hope I may never see my dear old mother again if I did not crack my hand on his elbow," or "May lightning strike my little girl dead where she stands this minute if I am not telling you the truth."

But, returning to old Mr. O'Leary, who was foot walking for money when Queen Victoria was a bride, and who still is walking the bases at town ball yards before crowds that were, in the main, unborn when he was half a century old, I find him to be a hesitant sitter. It seems as though the impetus of 75 years of foot walking will carry him on and on when the marvelous old engine within him quits. They may have to lasso old Daniel for his own obsequies when the time comes.

He stands a little apart from the desks and people, in a small clearing, and shuffles his venerable dogs like a tap dancer waiting to break into his routine. He is little and skinny as a sparrow and a trifle seedy but jaunty, too, if not positively cocky at the age of 90 years, which makes him senior to William Muldoon, the inveterate old man of New York.

Is Restless When Sitting

"Sit."

Mr. O'Leary sits restlessly, like a bird trying to lie on its back. The old dogs tap and shuffle on the linoleum, and he taps the weathered old fingers which hoisted stem glasses in Piccadilly, London, W., when the kerosene lamp was an advanced and luxurious doo-dad of the well-to-do and champagne was 3 shillings a quart.

In County Cork he was born, not far from Queenstown. He is a little stubborn about calling Queenstown the Cove of Cork, which is the name of the place, so it is, because he remembers when the queen made a visit there along in the fifties and the British called it Queenstown without so much as a "by your leave" to the Irish there.

"I remember," he says, "the big potato famine in Ireland and people dying at Skibbereen and Cork, although it was Ireland's own fault, because they wouldn't plant turnips or wheat or anything but just potatoes. There was a priest at Skibbereen named Father Davis and he went to England and came back with some money to buy some fishing boats so the men could go out and catch fish to relieve the famine. An English woman put up the money for Father Davis, so you will find good people everywhere, even in England.

Sends Grandsons To College.

"We used to have wrestling, walking, football, hurling and bowling for sports when I was a boy around Cork, and I think we liked the hurling and football and bowling the best because the boys seemed to take a natural joy in games where they could swing some kind of a club, or kick something or throw a small,

Peacock's 73 Tops Field at Woodmont

D.C. Junior Champion Sets Pace in 1st Day Qualifying.

Hallock, Unattached, Second With 75 Card in Tournament.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

ROGER PEACOCK, who was runner-up in the Indian Spring Club championship two years ago and who is the present District junior champion, yesterday led the field in the first day's qualification round of the annual spring invitation tournament of the Woodmont Club, formerly the Town and Country Club.

Peacock had a score of 38—35—73 and was two strokes ahead of Bernard Hallock, of Honesdale, Pa., a student at the Pace Institute, who competed as an unattached player.

Only three other players turned in cards of less than 80—Addison Loveless, captain of the golf team of Bethesda High School, with 35—42—77; W. A. Dennis, Georgetown University and a member of Congressional Club, with 39—38—77, and Arnold McCaffrey, also of the Congressional Club, with 38—40—78. Peacock's card, only three over the par of the course, was as follows:

Out..... 5 8-5 5 3 5 4 3 5—38
In..... 4 4 5 3 4 4 4 3 4—35—73

Stars Among Field To Tee Off Today.

When all the scores had been turned in, and the last player did not turn in his card until after the sun had set behind the western hills, there were ten players who were 81 and under, demonstrating that scores of 80 or less will be eligble for match play in the first sixteen, especially with a field today that includes some of the best players in the District, including M. B. Stevinson, District amateur champion; John C. Shorey, former junior champion; Page Hufty, former champion of the Congressional Club, and many others.

A complete list of the cards turned in yesterday under 100 were as follows:

MARYLAND U. BEATS W.-L. IN TENTH

Error Lets Winning Run Score as Old Liners Win, 4-3.

LEXINGTON, Va., May 6.—Maryland downed Washington and Lee after ten innings of questionable baseball in a Tri-State League game here this afternoon, 4 to 3. With the winning run on third base twice during the game, the Generals displayed a brand of base running which was orthodox, to say the least. Maryland won after a fielding fiasco which would have done credit to no ball at all.

With two down in the tenth and a man on first, Mattox, Washington and Lee catcher, threw wildly to nab the runner stealing second. Cross, keystone sacker, was unable to stop the ball and Cremin, substitute centerfielder, let it get by him, too, the runner going all the way home.

"Whoa" Sounded Like "Go" and W. and L. Lost Chance.

Washington and Lee still might have won. Coming up in the last of the tenth, Mattox got to first, stole second and they was out trying to reach home on Cremin's grounder which the Maryland shortstop held long enough to allow Mattox to touch third and start homeward. The coacher on third yelled "whoa," and Mattox thought he said "go," so there you are. Washington and Lee outhit the victors, eleven to seven.

MACKS BEAT BROWNS FOR 6TH IN ROW

Foxx's Fourth Homer Helps in 4 to 1 Victory.

PHILADELPHIA, May 6 (A.P.).—The world's champion Athletics kept their winning streak moving along today when they captured their sixth straight and second in succession from the St. Louis Browns by a score of 4 to 1.

Rube Walberg was given the edge in a hurling debate with Sam Gray, on Jimmy Foxx's fourth home run of the season that scored Al Simmons in the fourth inning. Gray, who was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth, also was hit for two more runs in the seventh. The victory was Walberg's fourth of the season against no defeats.

Mickey Cochrane Out With Leg Injury.

Wally Schang was behind the bat for the champions in place of Mickey Cochrane, who may be out of the game a few days nursing an injury to his leg. He twice suffered bruises on the right leg last week and aggravated the injuries in yesterday's twelve-inning game.

Chisox Pound Morris; Beat Red Sox, 4 to 3

Boston, May 6 (A.P.).—The Chicago White Sox fell upon big Ed Morris for four runs in the fifth inning and defeated the Red Sox, 4 to 3, in the first game of their series here today.

Singles by Watwood, Lyons and Cissell, Kamm's three-base wallop and a pass to Pinch Hitter Metzler did the trick for the White Sox. After that, Young Eddie Durham, making his first appearance in the box for the Red Sox this season, held them hitless, but Lyons kept the Boston hits scattered and held his lead.

Both teams played errorless ball.

Eastern Nine Routs Tech By 24-3

Champs Hit 7 Home Runs in Auspicious Series Debut.

Lanahan Is Effective, Allowing Only Five Safeties.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, Jr.

EASTERN HIGH SCHOOL'S Baseball Team became murderers' row yesterday afternoon in making its debut in the interhigh school series at the Central High School Stadium.

Hitting everything coming their way, Eastern players knocked three Tech High pitchers out of the box, clubbed out 25 hits, including seven home runs, and scored in six innings, and when the last man was retired around 6:45 p. m. the score was found to be 24 to 3, with Eastern having the two dozen runs.

It seemed as if the theme song of the Lincoln Parkers must have been "Hit! Hit! Hit!" so often was the refrain sounded yesterday during the nine innings. Although failing to score in the first inning, Eastern was credited with two hits, and in every inning following one or more safe hits were recorded in its scoring column. Every player taking part in the slaughter got at least one safe hit, including two pinch hitters who were sent in to bat for two exhausted players in the last frame.

Taylor Hits 2 Homers For Eastern.

Of Eastern's seven circuit clouts, two were smacked by Toby Taylor, who also collected two singles. Eastern had a liking for bunching its homers, six of them being equally divided between the second and ninth innings, three coming in each frame. Another was walloped by McAboy in the fourth. During the seven-run melee in the second, little Danny Kessler started the parade with a smack over the center fielder's head, which produced the first three runs of the game, and in that same inning Taylor and Turner duplicated Kessler's performance, the latter two coming in succession.

In the ninth, Bob Snyder, who, incidentally, looked like the best catcher yet seen in the series, renewed the home-run festival and was exemplified by Pinch Hitter Calevas and Taylor, the latter making his second.

While hitting no homers, the batting averages of Jimmy Hayden, Dick

Indians Halt Yankees' Streak With 7-5 Victory

Yankee Stadium, New York, May 6 (A.P.).—The Indians were too powerful, both in hitting and pitching, for the Yanks, and the locals' three-game winning streak came to an end. The score was 7 to 5. The Clevelanders' victory maintained them in their tie for first place with the A's, who won also today, for their sixth straight.

ARMAGEDDON SETS ALL PACE IN HARFORD PURSE

Sande, Riding Hot Toddy, Second

Jockey Is Cheered in Reappearance at Pimlico Track.

Poplar Creek Scores in Chase Marked by Tumbles.

By J. B. SNODGRASS
(Staff Corresondent of The Post).

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, May 6.—There was an enthusiastic reception for Earl Sande as he paraded to the post on Hot Toddy in the Harford Purse, the first time he has ridden here since the fateful afternoon three years ago this fall, when he was ruled off for fouling Reigh Count in the Pimlico Futurity when astride Walter M. Jefford's Bateau, which finished second, and was disqualified. The premier jockey modestly acknowledged the warm reception.

There was a wait at the barrier, Armageddon breaking through the gate and carrying the tape around his shoulders. Armageddon got off in front and led all the way. Sande, on Hot Toddy, finished second, and Glen Riddle's Shipmaster was third. Sande rode a fine race, but Eaby, on Armageddon had the better horse. In the stretch Armageddon drew away, winning by four lengths, running the mile and 70 yards in 1:44 2-5.

The winner was second choice and paid $6.50.

Dismounting of Eaby Questioned.

There was a consultation in the steward's office after the race over permitting Eaby to dismount during Armageddon's cavorting at the gate. Outside criticism was that the boy should have remained mounted during this interruption and the horse not be relieved of any weight.

Fourteen horses went to the post in the Patapsco Steeplechase, 2-mile feature here today, and the $2,000 added purse went to the Eastland Farm's Poplar Creek, by 2½ lengths. Mrs. R. V. McKim's Hoe Cake was second, and Rigan McKinney's Golden Gorse third.

Hoe Cake's dough was spoiled when her running mate, Mrs. Ambrose Clark's Brown Stout, fell, but Hoe Cake saved the place. Ambrose Clark was opposing Mrs. Clark with Stoney Lonesome, but he got nothing. They were not coupled.

The winner paid $14.20; time, 3:55 2-5, and W. Collins had the mount.

Accidents went with the field. Rollicking Princess was the first to unseat her rider, R. Williams. She it was which killed Bennie Kleeger, her jockey, at Laurel last year. Errant Hawk next lost his rider and then Brown Stout came a cropper with M. Sims.

Huon Joy was the early leader, then Eon led the field for a short distance. Huon Joy regained the lead when Poplar Creek and Brown Stout began a strong challenge which landed Poplar Creek the winner and put Brown Stout out of the running. No boy was seriously hurt.

Bruce's Avalon Wins Second Race.

Howard Bruce, who specializes in steeplechasing and is owner of Billy Barton, invader of England, has turned his attention to flat racing, and won his second event in his new fad in the first race here today, when Avalon, a 2-year-old by Dunlin—Effort, led all the way, with a margin of a length at the end. Mrs. Walter M. Jefford's All Hail, the favorite, was second, and five lengths in front of the Rancosas Stable's Glidella.

The race was for 2-year-olds and the winner paid $13.50. Bejshak was a hustling rider on Avalon, running the 4½ furlongs in 55. Nine started. The start was good from the gate.

The Goodstone Stable's Blind Lane had no trouble in seeing his way around in the third race, for 2-year-old maidens at 4½ furlongs, getting the decision by three lengths.

P. Walls had the mount and the filly was saddled by Max Hirsch. Jolly King closed fast to get the place from William Garth's Meek and Snooty was fourth, a field horse. She is the daughter of Snob II, a sensation of a few years back, when Josiah Cosden was a large turfman. The winner was backed from 6 to 1 down to 6 to 5.

Blind Lane jumped out into a long lead when the field left the gate well aligned, and nothing could catch her.

Friedjof Nansen Scores First Time Out.

Mrs. A. Swenke's Friedjof Nansen, which went to the post limping, had his field behind him all the way once the horses had left the starting gate, delayed somewhat by the ancient mare, Marat. Fair Albert, the favorite, was second and Alabama Bound third.

Deronda, well backed, was forcing the pace of Friedjof Nansen at the clubhouse turn, but Ambrose had little trouble keeping his explorer in front. Fair Albert was kept back by getting behind slow horses until the turn into the home stretch, when he came fast, but lacked a half-length getting up. Forest Lore was fourth. The winner paid $13.70.

ALL HAIL AVALON IN THE OPENER.

AVALON, breaking in the first flight and securing a brief lead in the early racing, disposed of REGINA H., withstood keen contention from ALL HAIL during the stretch run and was under urging at the end. ALL HAIL entered contention swiftly, made a determined effort at the final furlong pole, but was held safe. GLIDELIA was hard urged all the way and had no excuses. SNOW WHITE broke slowly and was outrun. REGINA H. had early foot.

POPLAR CREEK TRICKLES HOME IN SECOND.

POPLAR CREEK, reserved until the last turn of the field, moved into the lead when STONEY LONESOME blundered at the final fence and held HOE CAKE safe. Latter worked his way up steadily, closed stoutly and was catching the winner gradually. His saddle slipped badly and G. Smoot was unable to do his mount justice. GOLDEN GORSE finished with a belated rush on the flat after the last fence. MIRAGE showed a good test all the way. OAKLAND was held safe. KING ALBERT stumbled at the first fence. STONEY LONESOME was in front going to the last fence, struck the hedge and almost fell and was pulled up. ERRANT HAWK, HUON JOY fell at the final fence, while EON, BROWN STOUT and ROLLICKING PRINCESS fell at the seventh.

THIRD RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,300. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:38. Off at 4:40. Winner, Goodestone Stable's b. f. BLIND LANE LEADS TO VICTORY IN THIRD.

BLIND LANE, racing as if much the best, sprinted into a long lead directly after start, increased his advantage momentarily and then was taken in hand during the final furlong. JOLLY KING, urged stoutly, closed gamely, but was unable to threaten the winner. MEEK went forwardly and had no excuses. SNOOTY had speed early, but tired fast at end. DUNLIN'S LAD finished courageously. OVER SHADY broke slowly and was never in a forward position.

FRIEDJOF NANSEN BETTER THAN FAIR ALBERT.

FRIEDJOF NANSEN, outrunning his field to the first turn and rated along in front under slight restraint, resisted contention from DERONDA and, holding on stoutly for the final issue, had enough left to withstand FAIR ALBERT. Latter, in a forward position and going in good fashion, finished gamely in the closing rest. ALABAMA BOUND, slow to get going, closed full of run in the final drive. FOREST LORE weakened the last furlong. DERONDA, going in improved fashion, was weakly ridden. IMBROS, going forwardly early, tired when the real test came.

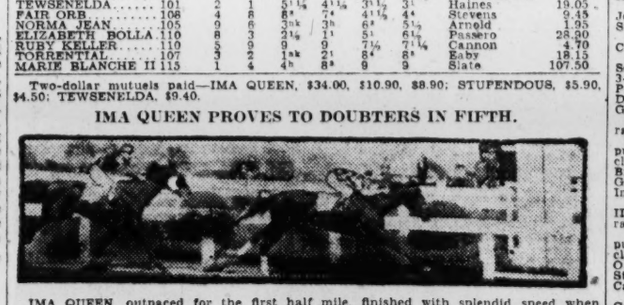
IMA QUEEN PROVES TO DOUBTERS IN FIFTH.



IMA QUEEN, outpaced for the first half mile, finished with splendid speed when called on, gained an easy lead when ELIZABETH BOLLA swerved out at the furlong pole and, under urging withstood STUPENDOUS. Latter improved her position steadily, but weakened after getting on almost equal terms with the winner in the last furlong. TEWSENELDA raced well placed and held on well. FAIR ORB lacked speed from the start and was held safe. NORMA JEAN was used up in the early racing. ELIZABETH BOLLA was racing strongly when she swerved out at the final furlong pole and lost much ground. RUBY KELLER showed a dull test. TORRENTIAL and MARIE BLANCHE II out.

ARMAGEDDON HOTFOOTS HOME IN SIXTH.

ARMAGEDDON, unruly at the barrier, broke in motion and, going to the front at once, shook off early opposition from SUNVIR, drew clear at the final elbow and came away to win with much in reserve. HOT TODDY, crowded after the break, secured clear passage on the inside when settled on the back stretch, was placed to punishment, but was unable to threaten the winner. SHIPMASTER was never able to offer serious contention. SUNVIR forced a good early pace and quit.

SEVENTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start fair. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 6:51. Off at 6:59. Winner, H. B. Bedwell's b. g. (4), by Fair Gain—The Lark. Trained by owner.

RING BODY BINDS SCHMELING TO ORDERS FOR YEAR

Battle Terms Accepted by German

Is Promised License; Must Defend Title Within Year.

Commission to Select Next Opponent If He Whips Sharkey.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, May 6 (A.P.).—Max Schmeling will get his license to fight Jack Sharkey for the heavyweight champion in the Yankee Stadium June 12, but the teetering applecart of the German heavyweight's tangled affairs was all but tipped over again today before he gained that assurance from the New York State Athletic Commission.

Only two days off the boat after a year's voluntary exile in Germany due to managerial squabbles and arguments with the commission, Schmeling sailed blithely into the stronghold of the fistic fathers, confident that the return of his boxing license, revoked almost a year ago, was only a formality. He got away from there three hours later, ruffled and rumpled, assured of his license but still mired in difficulties.

Before Schmeling could make his peace with the commission he agreed that in the event he won the title from Sharkey he would make no more entangling alliances before October 15, 1930. Schmeling's contract with his original German manager, Arthur Buelow, runs out October 13, 1930, and is the document that has caused Max most of his troubles.

Must Defend Title Within Year.

Once this contract has expired, the Teuton has agreed to sign for a title defense with a promoter named by the commission and against the "logical contender," also named by the commission, should the German beat Sharkey. The bout must be staged in New York State within a year from the date of winning the title.

All of these stipulations were agreeable to Schmeling, though he plainly indicated his fear that the "logical contender" would develop into Phil Scott, the Englishman Sharkey stopped at Miami.

Another ticklish point revolved about the application of Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager of choice, for a license as "manager and second." Jacob's license was revoked along with that of Schmeling, but the new pilot is in full command of Max's affairs today and is expected to direct the German's battle from the corner the night of the Sharkey mill.

Refuses to Discuss Jacobs Angle.

In direct contrast to the conciliatory attitude toward Schmeling, Chairman James A. Farley said in reference to Jacobs:

"I refuse absolutely to discuss his applications; that matter will be settled later."

"Schmeling has caused us a lot of trouble," Farley said, "but that is all water over the dam. We have no desire to do other than bring about successful termination of this fight."

Schmeling and his trainer, Max MacHon, probably will receive their licenses Friday morning. Signing of articles, scheduled for today, will take place in Endicott, N. Y.

Braying Boaster Outwits Ordeal by Fire at Columbia

THE formal opening of the golfing season was celebrated yesterday at the Columbia Country Club by an all-day festival by the Boasters' Club, an organization for which any member of the Columbia Club is eligible, provided he can boast of having defeated some golfer or can name some one whom he thinks he can defeat.

Nearly 200 members of the club, half of whom had already been admitted to the Boasters' Fraternity, gathered at the clubhouse early yesterday morning and were then transported to the happy hunting grounds, which happened to be located near the tenth tee. At this point a procession, headed by Herbert T. Shannon, proceeded along the fifth fairway to the fifth tee. As Chief Boaster, Shannon was mounted upon a white horse, whose forelegs were swathed in red knickers, while his hind legs were enveloped in yellow knickers, and his sides covered with red and yellow drapings.

Behind Chief Boaster Shannon came a delegation of members in Indian costume, followed by boasters in red and yellow knickers and about 150 caddies, all of whom were gaily decorated. In front of the procession marched a band of colored musicians, also clad in all the colors of the rainbow.

At the fifth tee, where the initiates had been seated, there was an ordeal by fire. A consultation among the Indians resulted in the choice of Frank Govern as the victim. He was bound to a stake and around him were lighted a battery of railroad flares. After a test in which his breath was declared to be as dry as a bone and a blood test which resulted in a bottle full of white fluid which was declared to be nothing less than alcohol, he indulged in numerous contortions which finally ended in his walking off the tee, carrying the stake with him.

Then all the members of the club indulged in a golf game, which was a double-barreled Scotch foursome, eight players hitting in turn at four balls, and when the clubhouse was finally reached the afternoon was spent in purely mental recreation.

Cards Field Poorly as Mt. St. Mary's Rallies to Win.

Special to The Washington Post.

EMMITSBURG, Md., May 6.—Playing its best fielding game of the season and with timely hitting, Mount St. Mary's College Baseball team defeated the Catholic University here this afternoon, 10-5.

For the first five innings, the game was of a seesaw affair, the visitors leading in the second and fifth sessions. In the last part of the fifth, the Mountaineer team got to Hurley and, by a series of bingles, including a home run by Dan Valibus, put over four runs, which was a sufficient advantage to win the game.

Catholic University was unable to do any scoring after the fifth round. With two on in the third inning, Jerry Ryscavage hit a long drive to left field for four bases, sending McGarrigan and Zinsky over the plate ahead of him, giving the big catcher two home-run clouts in the contest.

The fielding of Dunn, left gardener, was the outstanding feature for the Catholic University team.

CITY SCHOOLS FIGURE IN 3 TRACK MEETS SATURDAY

C.U. Carnival Objective of St. John's

Tech Meets Plebes and Maryland Cubs at Annapolis.

Central to Compete at Princeton; Nines Hit by Ineligibility.

WHILE the track team of St. John's Prep School is preparfor the big Eastern Catholic High meet to be held at Catholic University on Saturday, track teams of two local high schools are also preparing for competition on the same day.

Central's athletes are going through the paces daily in preparation for their participation in the Princeton scholastics while Tech High's sprinters and field men are prepping for the triangular meet with the Maryland Freshmen and Navy Plebes to be held at Annapolis.

With the participation of five schools already definitely assured, Catholic University authorities are expecting the entrance of three or four more teams in its fourth annual affair of this kind. West Catholic High, of Philadelphia, three-times winner of the meet, has signified its intention of defending its title gained in 1927 and plans to enter fourteen men in the twelve events.

Make-up of Central Squad Secret.

Besides West Catholic, Northeast Catholic, La Salle Institute, of Cumberland; La Salle High, of Philadelphia, and Mount St. Joseph's of Baltimore, have already filed their entrants.

Although five men will be taken from the Central track squad to Princeton, secrecy shrouds the announcement of those to participate, Coach Bill Foley having decided not to reveal the names until Thursday afternoon. It will be an open affair at Princeton, similar to the University of Maryland meet last Friday, in which Central placed second.

Tech's Team will send all of its men into action against the Maryland Freshmen and Navy Plebes on Saturday, the meet being the last before the annual "C" Club games to be held her a week hence.

Incidentally, Central's Squad lost two performers through ineligibility. Sam Mirman, husky shot put man, and Boucher, a hurdler, have been declared ineligible, having failed to pass in their subjects during the last advisory period.

Three Ball Players Ineligible.

Three regular members of two high school baseball teams were declared ineligible yesterday, two through deficiencies in studies and one through having played with an outside team. Henry Broadbent, dependable first baseman of the Central Nine, and Dick Nelson, regular third sacker of Tech, both "flunked" in subjects, while Stanley Harrison, reserve Central infielder, has been barred from the Central Team as a result of his participation with the Lionel Independent Nine.

However, Central gained its captain and only veteran, George Brandt, through the completion of the advisory, while Western High receives the services of Jimmy Thompson, who has become eligible.

7 HOME RUNS MARK EASTERN TRIUMPH

Lanahan and Ben McCullough got off to healthy starts, four, three and two hits being made by the respective performers.

Lanahan Allows Only 5 Hits.

Although somewhat overshadowed by his team's display of slugging, Dick Lanahan, southpaw hurler, amply lived up to all the nice things that had been said about him. Though somewhat wild, granting seven walks and hitting two batsmen, Lanahan was parsimonious with hits, limiting the Techites to five bingles in eight innings. Not a safe blow was recorded until the fourth, when, with a 14-0 lead, Lanahan eased up. The lad had a wide-breaking curve and a neat drop, and should be most valuable to Eastern in its attempt to bag its third straight championship.

In winning, Eastern revealed a well-rounded club, strongly fortified in every department, and one which promises plenty of trouble to any team seeking to snatch away its title. In Snyder and Lanahan, it has about the best battery in the series, while its infield and outfield showed no weakness.

No Special Foul Rule For Fields-Thompson

Detroit, Mich., May 6 (A.P.).—The Michigan Boxing Commission declined today to give its sanction to any deviation from the rules regarding fouls in the welterweight championship bout between Jackie Fields, and Young Jack Thompson at Olympia Stadium Friday night. Gig Rooney, manager for the champion, brought up the subject and proposed that, in event of an injury from a low blow, the fight be stopped for five minutes or more in order to allow the fouled fighter to rest.

Thompson's manager, Ray Alvis, who previously had been represented as agreeing to this proceedure, objected. Alvis said that the San Francisco Negro has never won or lost a fight on a foul punch and that he would rather abide by the rules now that the championship is at stake. He maintained that a fouled fighter would be at a disadvantage even after a rest, since the other man would have rested also with no injury to overcome.

ILLINOIS TRACKMEN WIN.

Champaign, Ill., May 6 (A.P.).—Undefeated by Notre Dame in thirteen years of outdoor track competition, the University of Illinois Track Team today maintained its clean slate by turning back the Ramblers, 68-58.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

ALEXANDRIA, Va., May 6.—Episcopal High School Baseball Team has suffered another big loss, Nick Carter, first-string catcher, breaking his leg in a practice session last week. Mr. Carter, a son of one of the professors at the Episcopal institution, has been doing all the receiving this season and has been one of the mainstays of the team. Zimmer, his understudy, has taken over the receiving duties.

Coach Reynolds has been drilling his charges to top speed this week in an effort to get them in readiness for the biggest game of the season Friday afternoon, when the Alexandria High School Team faces the strong George Mason High School Team.

The George Mason High School Track Team will take on Episcopal High School Junior tomorrow afternoon on Hoxton Field, beginning at 3:30 o'clock. These games should put the Masons in better shape for the annual third district meet that is to be held next week.

Alexandria High will play the Western High School Nine at Hayden Field tomorrow afternoon beginning at 3:30 o'clock. Coach Reynolds is having trouble finding a capable pitcher. Bray and Nicholson are the only two who have ever pitched, and they seem to be unable to last nine innings.

Jimmy Alexander, an Alexandria boy who has been in Boston, Mass., for the past three years, has returned to the city for a while. Alexander is anxious to get back on the baseball field. He previously played with the Old Dreadnaughts.

Only three teams have accepted bids to enter Third Disrtict track meet sponsored each year by the Alexandria High School, which is to be held here on May 15. These teams are Washington and Lee, George Mason and Fredericksburg.

King George Tries Out New Betting Machines

When his majesty arrived for the races he became greatly interested in the machines which were only recently installed. After listening to the explanation of how betting is done through the machine the king purchased a ticket. "The name of the horse he backed was not announced.

Woodberry Defeats Staunton, 4-3, in 10th

Woodberry Forest, Va., May 6.—A triple by Hall and numerous errors on the part of the visitors enabled Woodberry Forest to overcome a three-run lead and defeat the Staunton Military Academy Nine, 4 to 3, in the tenth. The Cadets scored in the first, fifth and sixth innings and apparently had things all their own way, with Wise pitching steady ball, when suddenly their defense cracked and allowed the locals to cross the plate in the seventh for their first run.

In the last half of the tenth, Papy singled and, following a grounder by Clay, when safely home on wild throws with the winning run. Andrews pitched steady ball for Woodberry, allowing but four hits while the locals hit safely seven times, forcing Wise to give way in the eighth. Woollen, Lewis and Hall led the Orange and Black with two hits apiece, while Hafer shone at the plate for the Cadets with two triples to his credit.

round rock, the size of an apple, which was the ball we bowled with, out on the road on Sundays."

William Muldoon is Daniel O'Leary's last living athletic contemporary, but the strong man is ailing now, and Daniel still walks the bases.

He pulled out a savings deposit book and ran his finger down the column.

"I have $7,000," he said, sliding the book back into his pocket. "I am sending my two grandsons through college. You have got to have an education these days. Myself, I had no education, but I had good feet and legs under me and my heart is as good today after walking 300,000 as it was in 1849."

Daniel O'Leary got up, shoved the chair away and fiddled his feet, shuffshuff, on the linoleum.

"Well, I'm off. Walking the bases tomorrow. You have to keep hustling to lay up something for your old age."

catcher home. Braxton then retired the next three in order.

The Nationals started with a rush, which was greatly appreciated in view of their poor stickwork of the past three games. West hit the first ball pitched for a double to left and then followed in rapid succession clean one-basers off the bats of Rice, Myer and Goslin. After Cronin fouled to the catcher, Judge lined one to right for a base. The rally ended when, as Bluege took a third strike, Judge was trapped heading for second, the play being switched to Myer, when he then attempted to sneak in from third.

Tigers Quickly Score Tying Runs.

The Tigers quickly served warning that 3 runs would not be enough, however, by scoring once in the second on Alexander's opening single and Fothergill's triple, and twice in the third on a single by Funk and doubles by Gehringer and McManus.

In both frames, Marberry had to show some clever pitching to prevent more damage. Fothergill being held at third in round two with none out on two short shots to the outfield and Rensa's strike-out.

In the fourth, Sorrell and Funk singled in order with two dead and were left, the Nats scoring again in the next frame. This marker came when, with two gone, Goslin doubled off the right-field wall and Myer immediately propelled him over with a one-base liner to right.

Hits by Bluege and Ruel were marked "no good" in the sixth and the Nats scored what proved to be their winning run in the eighth. Myer, first up, coaxed a pass, took second on Cronin's out, and counted when Judge slashed a single to right.

Crowd's Exit Halted By Rally in 9th.

Just as the fans were walking toward the exits, the crash of wood meeting leather stopped them as Rensa poled a liner to left. Goslin was set to take the ball on the bounce, but it suddenly shot way over his head and the runner was at third before it could be retrieved. Pinch-hitter H. Rice singled, scoring this run and giving way on the bases to Hayworth, but the utility runner got little exercise. He was forced midway on Gehringer's tap to Judge after Funk had popped to Ruel and the game ended when Sam Rice camped under McManus' hoist.

Judge, Myer and Goslin were the Nats' heavy hitters, each getting two safeties, with the first two named driving home two runs each. Judge also advanced to the top of the league in hitting, with Sam Rice and Chalmers Cissell, of the Chisox, dropping down to a tie for second. Funk, Alexander and Sorrell were credited with two hits apiece for the Harrismen. Afield, nothing out of the ordinary was shown.

MARINES WIN, 2 TO 1, FROM TEMPLE

Sadler's 3-Bagger Is Decisive; Devil Dogs Outhit, 6 to 4.

Special to The Washington Post.

QUANTICO, Va., May 6.—While outhit, 6 to 4, the Marines took the first game of the series of two from Temple here today by the score of 2 to 1.

Dougal, for the visitors, and Smith, for the Marines, pitched brilliantly. The Marines broke the string of goose eggs in the fourth when Gatewood singled, stole second and came home on Cy Young's bingle to right.

Temple evened the count in the sixth when Leaness doubled to left and scored when Rambone shot a safety to right. The Marines went into the lead when Sadler, first up in the seventh, tripled to center as Center Fielder Wearshing played the ball poorly, and came home on Lusignan's fly to Godfrey, who hit the runner in throwing home.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

BE GOOD TO AGING LIVER.

J. S. S. writes: Will you kindly state what diet or treatment one should pursue for injury to the liver caused by toxic condition of blood stream?

REPLY.

When a man develops diabetes we put him on a diet which spares his pancreas as much work as possible. When a man develops Brights disease he is taught to protect his kidneys by diet and in all other ways. When a man develops heart disease his exercise is regulated to fit the capacities of his heart muscle. For the same reason we should temper the wind to the shorn liver.

Like the weather, we talk about the subject constantly, but few undertake to do anything about the weather, and the liver likewise gets nothing but talk. It can be assumed that practically every person over 60 years of age should lighten the load on his liver. That large organ has been doing a vast amount of important work for a long time and it has earned the right to an old age pension. If a man has been a gluttonous eater, has always soaked his food in pepper sauce, horseradish, mustard, or like condiments, his liver may go on strike at an age earlier than 60. If he has been an alcoholic addict the likelihood is greater still. If there has been a gall bladder infection or gall stones, it is almost certain that the liver has been damaged.

It is established that glycogen is a protective agent for the liver. Probably this is also true of the closely related sugars. Surgeons know enough to protect the liver through certain emergencies by the use of these foods. This suggests that people with crippled livers get considerable of their calories from sugars, assuming the pancreas to be reasonably sound. On the other hand, certain foods that throw a considerable strain on the liver should be eaten sparingly. At the head of this list should come alcoholic beverages and following them closely pepper, sauces, mustard, horseradish and condiments of that group. Eggs should come next. An excellent food for adolescents and younger people, eggs should not be a standby after middle life. Meats should be eaten sparingly. Greatly needed by growing children, adolescents, and men doing hard work, the need of them by elderly people is slight. Fats should also be eaten in limited quantities.

EFFECT ON BABY'S JOINTS.

Mrs. M. writes: I have been told that a rubber sheet, under a nine month old baby, will affect her joints, and that it will hinder her from gaining weight. Is this so? She weighs about 17 pounds.

REPLY.

If the bed is changed often enough to keep it dry and if the rubber is covered enough to keep the bed warm, there will be no harm done in that way.

If the bed is permited to stay wet or if it is cold there may be some tendency to joint troubles. Growth in weight and height will not be stopped.

PRICES FOR STOCKS GAIN 2 TO 20 POINTS

Observers View Recovery as Sign of Stronger Pace in Future.

BUSINESS CREDIT FIRM

New York, May 6 (A.P.).—Stock trading returned to a normal basis today. The discomfitted bears, forced to retreat at the close yesterday, were distinctly in the background and the market gave a demonstration of strength such as customarily follows periods of pronounced professional selling.

A score of high-priced shares closed 10 to more than 20 points higher, while innumerable issues finished 2 to 8 points above Monday's final quotations. Rails and tobacco stocks were conspicuously strong. The index of 90 shares rose 6.2 points.

A survey of the reaction that had been in progress since early in April discloses that about 40 per cent of the advance since last fall was lost. In conservative circles there is little inclination to bewail this loss; rather, it is held in many quarters that the steady slump of the past three or four weeks is for thebest, since it is rather expected that the market will proceed quietly for some time after the current readjustment from the bear drive has been completed and will keep closer to the pace of business.

Depression Seen as Mild.

Economists point out that the existing depression is mild in comparison with conditions in 1908 or 1921. Inventories are generally low and corporations have comparatively small current liabilities. Furthermore, they came out of last fall's crash amply supplied with cash which they had withdrawn from employment in the money markets.

Again, business credit is in a strong position, and the country is talking about profits rather than about solvency. Commodity prices are inclined to easg, but in some instances a resistance point appeared to have been reached.

Movements in the market today, as during the recent wild sessions, were highly professional. Some shopping for stocks at attractive levels was reported, but most of the support came from continued covering operations and from organized efforts to work the list higher.

Trading was irregular during the morning, which saw further distress liquidation of a mild character and spasmodic efforts to pick soft spots. Offerings, however, were quickly absorbed and by early afternoon the bulls started a drive in the utilities, bringing up the rails and high-priced specialties as reenforcements.

Copper Shares Slump.

Uncertainty in the copper situation depressed shares of half a dozen companies to new lows for the year. One producer cut to 12½ cents a pound from the 13-cent level established yesterday, and it was said in circles close to the industry that important buying probably would not appear until the price had been pared to 12 cents. Coppers touching new lows included Kennecott, Anaconda, Miami, Granby and Inspiration.

One of the day's features in the share market was the strength of the American Tobacco stocks, both of which went to record highs on large gains. The advances were accompanied by rumors of distributions to holders later in the year.

Case Threshing furnished a spectacular exhibition. This volatile stock, which had sold as low as 276 on Monday, closed at 328¾, up 39¼ points, the largest advance of the day. Particular attention was paid to the railroad shares, sharply deflated last week, and such issues as Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Atchison, Missouri Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Southern Railway, New Haven and Chesapeake & Ohio rallied 4 to 8 points.

Utilities Prove Buoyant.

Utilities, as a group, were more buoyant. Allied Power & Light gained 10, Detroit Edison and North American 7, Brooklyn Union Gas 8 and American Power & Light 8. American Telephone rose 4¾ net.

U. S. Steel, which advanced to 175, closed at 173, up 1¼. Radio, whose stockholders approved the increase in the capital stock under the reorganization plan involving General Electric and Westinghouse, was heavily bought and closed 4¾ higher.

Commodities were again mixed. Grains firmed, with wheat about 2 cents higher and corn up fractionally. Cotton finished steady, at small net advances, but sugar futures were under pressure, dropping to a new low for the past 30 years.

Foreign currencies eased. Sterling declined under the expectation of gold shipments to Paris, while the Spanish peseta slipped off about 3 points.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, May 6 (A.P.).—An early advance on relatively steady Liverpool cables and covering was followed by reactions in cotton today with later fluctuations irregular.

July contracts, after selling up to 16.61, or 17 points net higher, reacted to 16.39, or 5 points net lower, and closed at 16.49. The general market closed barely steady at net advances of 4 to 5 points on the old crop months, while later deliveries were 9 to 18 points net lower.

The market opened steady, unchanged to an advance of 8 points. May notices, estimated at about 13,400 bales, were reported, and there seemed to be some selling against them at the start. The offerings were readily absorbed by trade buying, which appeared to be partly against sales of July at a difference of 12 points, however, and the general market worked higher during the morning.

May sold up from 16.34 to 16.48, while the new October contract advanced to 14.5, making net gains of about 6 to 17 points on the general list. The demand then slackened, and the market eased under realizing or liquidation which appeared to be coupled with some local or Southern selling of the new crop positions.

This, doubtless, was promoted by a favorable interpretation of weather and crop advices, and the new October sold off to 14.17 during the middle of the afternoon, or 13 points net lower. Old crop months worked off also, with May selling down to 16.32, 4.2 points net lower, but the market stiffened up a few points during the last hour of covering. Business in May was less active. That delivery closed nominal at 16.38, or 11 points under the price of July and about 218 points above the new October.

At the close of the Liverpool market the price of May there was 60 points under the local quotation for July, and there was further talk as to the possibility of return shipments here, although some of the local cotton men said they thought such operations were unlikely. There was some selling of July by prominent brokers during the afternoon which attracted considerable attention, but July closed at 229 points over October compared with 214 points yesterday. Liverpool cables said that continental trade calling had been supplied by realizing in that market. They reported fair sales of cotton cloths for home consumption, but said that business with India and China was much restricted.

Port receipts today, 14,133. U. S. port stocks, 1,439,266. Exports today, 13,453, making 6,328,390 so far this season.

STOCK OPTION LIST HEADS BOND RALLY

After Slow Opening, Rails and Convertibles in Brisk Sales Score Gains.

INDUSTRIALS ARE MIXED

New York, May 6 (A.P.).—Bonds staged a robust rally today. Stock privilege issues led the advance as favorable credit conditions again exerted their influence after the temporary depression influenced by stocks had been halted.

The general tone of the market showed improvement, and the list closed briskly after a slow start. Trading was in slightly larger volume than Monday. There was some indication that the attention of investors was again focused on fixed interest-bearing securities. The slowness of the market has been somewhat of a mystery in view of the extreme easing of credit, although it was apparent that funds had been withdrawn for use in the share market.

Trading in convertible bonds was unusually large and generally at higher levels. Net gains of from 5 to 2 points were common. The largest blocks turned over were in American Telephone 4½s and Missouri & Pacific 5½s. American Telephone & Atchison 4½s led the advance, with gains of 5½ points each. Warner Pictures 6s, Philadelphia Reading Co. and General Theaters 6s made spectacular recoveries.

The market for standard investment issues picked up and high grade rails, which were quiet during the morning developed a good market before the close. The feature was the Erie 5s, which made a new high at 95¾, gaining 1⅛ on unusually large sales. There was extensive trading also in Nickel Plate 4½s and Pennsylvania debenture 4½s, most of the rails netted good fractional gains Atchison general 4s, and Northern Pacific general 3s lost ground.

Some of the leaders of the utility group moved ahead in the day's trading. American Telephone debenture 5s, Colorado Gas & Electric 5s, International Telephone 5s, North American Edison 5s, and Postal Telegraph 5s made the best gains. The advances ranged from 1½ to 3 points.

Industrials showed a mixed tendency. Trading in United States Governments continued light, but joined the upward movement, with gains ranging from 1-32 to more than a half a point.

The foreign government group was moderately active and many issues were distributed. However, this division still shows no real activity, and this was ascribed in some circles to uncertainty over the terms of the German annuity bonds expected this month. French and Chilean bonds were in moderate demand and advanced fractions. The general tone of the group was steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, May 6 (A.P.).—Keeping step with an upward march of the securities markets, wheat prices today made notable gains, and finished near the top level reached. Broader export demand for wheat from North America was a stimulating factor, together with announcement of 8,987,000 bushels decrease in the world's stock of wheat during the last week. Furthermore, there were complaints of excessive rains throughout Italy, France and Hungary, as well as of prevalence of rust in south Italy.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1⅝ to 2¾ cents a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅝ to 1⅜ cents up, oats ⅜ to 1 cent advanced, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents down.

Today's European purchases of wheat from Canada and the United States were finally estimated as totaling 1,000,000 bushels, and the world's visible supply decrease was known to have brought the aggregate supply down to but little more than 19,000,000 bushels above last year's amount. Meanwhile, from the start recent speculative sellers found out more and more that the wheat market had been oversold for at least the time being, and that future delivery offerings were scarce when most wanted. Upturns of Liverpool wheat quotations were also a source of strength to the buying side of the market here, with considerable notice being taken of an authoritative statement that North America has only exported 265,000,000 bushels so far this season, 50 per cent less than was the case last year, whereas 60 per cent of shipments have been but 30 per cent less.

At no time were wheat bears able to make any special headway despite further rains reported in Oklahoma and Kansas with a prospect of more and with showers also in the American and Canadian Northwest. Crop comments from the spring wheat belt were increasingly favorable, and it was generally reported that the spring wheat belt has now ample moisture to germinate grain. For the moment, however, traders gave much more attention to doings of the stock market and to yesterday's reports that the Grain Stabilization Corporation has disposed of all cash wheat owned at Gulf of Mexico ports and the Atlantic seaboard as well.

Corn and oats moved upward with wheat. There was an excellent shipping demand here for corn, and country offerings were small.

Provisions went lower on account of scattered selling which found buying support minus.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

MacFadden Publications, Inc.

B. K.—Will you kindly give a reader of The Washington Post for about 50 years whatever information you may have about MacFadden Publications, Inc., both common and preferred stock as an investment; also Continental Baking preferred.

Answer—Even though dividends are now being paid at the annual rate of $6 per share on MacFadden Publications preferred and that a dividend of $1 was paid on the common April 15, 1930, these stocks can not be classified as investments in the ordinary meaning of that term.

Earnings for the quarter ended March 31, 1929 (latest published), showed net before taxes of $805,085, equivalent to $9.47 per share on the preferred. These earnings compared with $6.36 in the corresponding quarter of 1928. The shares, which are listed on the New York Produce Exchange and likewise in the over-the-counter market, lack attractiveness.

Continental Baking preferred, on which dividends of $8 per share yearly are now being paid, yields to the investor at present market prices substantially in excess of 9 per cent, a very attractive return. Because of this, the issue is very well thought of from a speculative-investment viewpoint, notwithstanding the fact that the company's earnings in the first 15 weeks of current fiscal year are expected to show a substantial decline.

Noma Electric.

E. S.—Please give me your analysis of Noma Electric. What is its source of income and what the possibilities for enhancement in value?

Answer—Company controls about 80 per cent of business in Christmas tree and other decorative lighting sets. Recently stated company is to be consolidated with Pilot Radio & Tube. Latest report of earnings, for period February 21, 1928, to February 28, 1929, showed net income equal to $2.79 per share, compared with $2.63 per share for period from March 1 1927, to February 20, 1928. Initial quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share paid August 1, 1928. This rate has been continued to date. Stock looks fairly attractive from speculative-investment viewpoint. However, can not forecast possible future market movements in it.

Ford Motor, Ltd., England.

M. D.—Does the Ford Motor Co., Ltd., of England, pay regular dividends on its shares? Would one ever have to pay an assessment on them? What are the prospects of a continued income from the stock?

Answer—On American depositary receipts an initial dividend of 10 per cen (less fees, transfer and other expenses), equivalent to 37½ cents a share, was paid March 17, 1930. Earnings on the capital stock from organization in October, 1928, to December 31, 1929, amounted to the equivalent of 57 cents a share. Should earnings be maintained on that basis, it is likely that the company will continue to pay dividends similar to the one recently distributed, but which was for no fixed period.

In view of the promising outlook for the entire Ford organization, it does not appear at all likely that stockholders will at any time be called upon to pay an assessment.

Radio-Keith-Orpheum.

R. L.—Please advise me as to the latest earnings reported by the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation and as to the present market status of its shares?

Answer—Report for quarter ended March 31, 1930, showed net income of $1,607,622, equal to 87 cents a class A share and 27 cents cents a class B share. This, compared with net of $384,749, or 22 cents a class A share and a deficit of $1.01 a class B share in corresponding three months of 1929. Earnings for first quarter of 1930 were practically equal to those for entire year 1929, when net profit totaled $1,669,564.

Improvement in earning power reflects placing in operation of several theaters of its chain as wel as integration of various units of the company's business. The stock is in the hands of some very powerful interests who, it would appear, are capable of carrying it to substantially higher figures, even though it has not yet been established on a dividend paying basis.

Bullard Co.

A. T. I.—I am a constant reader of your column and would greatly appreciate your opinion on Bullard Co. stock.

Answer—This stock may be considered a good investment for long-term possession. Earnings last year were equal to $3.60 a share and the outlook is considered good in view of the royalties coming in on a process for metal finishing. This process is responsible for the lowering of manufacturing costs, which should be reflected in larger earnings this year. Dividends of $1.60 a share per year are paid on the stock, and with larger revenues predicted for 1930, the stock appears to be in a favorable position as to dividends.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, May 6 (A. P.).—Steel ingot production in April, according to the American Iron & Steel Institute, amounted to 4,243,312 tons, an average daily output of 159,358 tons, the plants operating at 81.25 per cent of rated capacity. In April last year the output was 4,938,025 tons, a daily average of 189,924, during which time the plants were operated at 96.84 per cent of capacity.

World production of Ford cars and trucks in April totaled 206,340 units, compared with 191,192 in April, 1929. March production this year totaled 169,045 cars. The average daily production based on a five-day week was 9,328 cars.

James G. Harbord, chairman of the Radio Corporation of America, has been elected a member of the executive committee of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad.

The additional 250,000 no-par shares which the Superior Oil Corporation has applied for listing on the New York Stock Exchange have been underwritten by a group of individuals at $8 a share. No public offering will be made and no rights will be issued to stockholders. Proceeds from the issue will be used to meet current obligations and for additional working capital.

American Bankers Association, in a statement today, said that a comparison of business conditions for the first quarter of 1930 with those for the same period of 1929 were "unjustified," inasmuch as in the first quarter of last year a new high level for the general run of business and record figures for many of our more important industries and trades were experienced. When 1928 and earlier years are recalled, he said, it will be seen that the general level of business is favorable.

State Senator Frank L. Ball, speaking last night at the monthly meeting of the Arlington County Civic Federation, lauded the creation of a northern Virginia park and planning commission.

Discussing the approaches to the new Memorial Bridge, Senator Ball said, "It is ridiculous to consider that two approaches, the Lee boulevard and the Straight-to-the-Bridge road will be adequate to meet the traffic needs. We will need many, and the thing to do is to now plan for a series of roads leading to the bridge."

Among other questions he spoke of was the bill providing for the right of citizens to vote on a change in the county form of government, the creation of the county court which abolishes the present police court and the gasoline tax.

The federation went on record as favoring the movement in the District of Columbia looking to gaining the right of suffrage.

The secretary was instructed to write letters to members of Congress from Virginia advising them of the action taken by the federation.

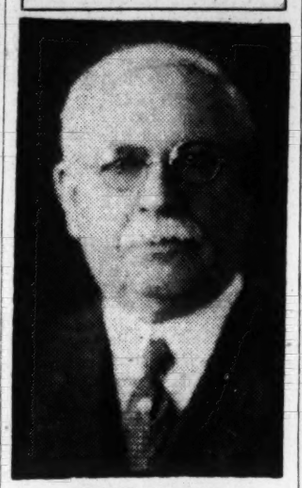
CITY BOOSTER



ROBERT S. JONES.

ALEXANDRIANS ACT TO AID CHAMBER

Reorganized Body Seeking to Interest Merchants in Washington.

MAYOR OUTLINES PLAN

The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, which is now nearing the end of a successful membership drive, has been thoroughly reorganized, and business men of the city are apparently convinced that it is now equipped to render service of the greatest value to the whole community.

Shortly after the annual election of officers, when John Barton Phillips, a young local attorney, was chosen president, Mayor Robert S. Jones addressed a letter to him stating that something should be done to improve the service rendered by the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Phillips suggested that the mayor appoint a committee of citizens to go into the matter, and this was done.

Of the 100 men appointed, 81 actually attended a meeting at which it was decided that the appointment of an industrial manager, and the placing in his hands of a fund of not less than $25,000 a year for three years, would solve the problem, provided the whole body of citizens would stand solidly behind the commerce chamber and its policy of expansion. Approximately $20,000 of this amount has already been subscribed, and it is confidently expected that before the campaign closes the entire sum required will be available.

Washington Interest Cited.

Mr. Jones, in discussing the matter, called attention to the fact that for several years the great business bodies of Washington have volunteered expressions of interest in the industrial development of Alexandria, and that beyond a natural neighborly good will they have a dollars-and-cents stake in the growth of Alexandria. It is the belief of promoters of the membership drive that business interests of Washington will be willing to contribute largely in the form of memberships.

With this in mind, Robert S. Barrett, chairman of the Alexandria Forward Movement, which is handling the campaign, is sending a large number of his solicitors to Washington to interview business men of the Capital with the end in view of increasing their interest in Alexandria, and incidentally their Alexandria trade, by becoming affiliated with the Alexandria chamber.

It is estimated that of the money which Alexandrians spend in retail stores, Washington gets 27 per cent. Promoters of the new chamber of commerce believe that this should justify Washington merchants and business men in investing in the prosperity of Alexandria, and that such investment would be returned many times.

Regional Benefit Seen.

Development of industry and commerce in Alexandria or somewhere in the community surrounding the seat of the Federal Government, according to Mayor Jones, is for the good of the whole region. "We hear much about keeping the Capital region beautiful," said Mr. Jones. "Reference is had to the loveliness of the landscape, of the highways, the parks, the buildings, and the monuments. Behind and beneath these physical beauties, if they are not to be whited sepulchers, are the beauty of human life and the loveliness of family institutions.

"If any locality in the whole territory cherishes historical sentiment and the instinct to stand guard over the national shrines, it is Alexandria. Our industrial development must not and need not deface the outward view.

Youth Acquitted Of Manslaughter

Cumberland Court Calls Fifth Case Involving Traffic Deaths.

Cumberland, Md., May 6.—Richard E. Light, 17, living near Pinto, was acquitted of manslaughter in connection with the death of Allan Clarence Lyon, 62, of Cresaptown. Lyon was killed when struck by a car driven by the youth, as he was walking on the highway. The State contended Light was endeavoring to pass other machines when he collided with the car of S. E. Powell, and struck Lyon. The counsel for the defense contended that Lyon was negligent in walking on the road early in the morning when traffic was heavy.

The case against Francis Schriver, 29, the last of the five at this term of court involving manslaughter as the result of automobile accidents, was taken up this afternoon. Schriver is charged with having caused the death of Edna Evelyn Decker, 17-year-old school girl, of Cumberland. Schriver's sedan struck a car driven by Eugene Weber, and Miss Decker, who with another girl was a passenger in Schriver's car, was killed.

It is alleged Schriver did not have a license to operate a motor car at the time and that he was also under the influence of liquor. The defense, it is understood, will contend that Weber was racing another car at the time, and Schriver was unwittingly involved.

CLOCK, WAR'S LOOT, RETURNED TO SOUTH

Descendants of Blue and Gray Witness Ceremony on Georgia Island.

Brunswick, Ga., May 6 (A.P.).—Descendants of the blue and gray clad hosts of the sixties stood side by side today while a Massachusetts delegation returned to its rightful owners an antiquated clock which Yankee sailors carried away from the plantation of Thomas Butler King during the War Between the States.

The ceremony was held in the only remaining building on the estate, a slave hospital now used as a caddies' clubhouse. Representative John W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, presented the clock to Walter F. George, junior senator from Georgia, who accepted it on behalf of the State. Hundreds of persons from all sections of Georgia attended the ceremony, which began this afternoon and ended tonight with a banquet in honor of the citizens of Attleboro, Mass., who returned the clock. Long before the ceremony began scores of automobiles gathered on the grounds of the Sea Island Golf Club of the King plantation.

Clock Given Grandson.

Frank D. Aiken, Brunswick banker, whose wife is the youngest granddaughter of Thomas King, acted as master of ceremonies. Fred E. Bridges, mayor of Attleboro and Charles O. Cain editor of the Attleboro Sun, responded for that city and the Grand Army of the Republic, to welcome addresses.

Representative Martin then presented the clock to Isaac Aiken, a grandson of Thomas King, and Senator George closed the ceremony with the address of acceptance.

Throughout the ceremony the old clock ticked away the minutes as it had done for years when the blue-clad seamen took it away.

Note Tells of Theft.

Edward A. Sigmund, an Attleboro antique dealer purchased the timepiece and an old shawl, which also had been taken from the King home. Inside the clock was found a note telling of the foraging party from the gunboat Ethen Allen, which carried the clock away. The clock's return was sponsored by the Grand Army of the Republic Dining Club of Attleboro.

St. Simon's Island, site of the old plantation, was the scene of early battles between the English and Spanish, and long after the war of liberation Aaron Burr, fleeing from the consequences of his duel with Alexander Hamilton, took refuge there.

The Massachusetts delegation is expected to return home tomorrow.

Baptist Minister Dies at 63 Years

Florida Pastor, Author and Lecturer, Is Victim of Heart Attack.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 6 (A.P.).—Dr. Lincoln McConnell, 63 years old, pastor of the First Baptist Church here, author and widely known lecturer, died suddenly today following a heart attack, suffered while he was riding in an automobile.

Besides his widow, he leaves three sons and a daughter. One of the sons, Edward, is a radio entertainer, residing in Cleveland. Another son, Lincoln, jr., is secretary of the Chamber of Commerce at Macon, Ga., while the third, Robert Lee, resides in Orlando, Fla. The daughter, Mrs. L. V. Larkin, lives in St. Petersburg.

Dr. McConnell was widely known throughout church circles of the South and Middle West because of his bitter attacks from the pulpit on vice, crime and law violations in general. Among several books that he wrote the one entitled "Lawlessness—Its Cause and Cure," probably was one of the most outstanding. A native of Tennessee, Dr. McConnell attended Maryville College and later received an L.L. D. degree at the University of Kentucky and a D. D. degree at Simmons University, Abilene, Tex. In 1890 he became a member of the Atlanta police and detective department and after three years was appointed assistant to the solicitor of the criminal court there, serving in that capacity two years.

$25 Fines Are Paid By Chiropractors

Danville Men Plead Guilty to Practicing Without Getting Licenses.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., May 6.—E. F. Graham and T. J. Oakes, chiropractors, today pleaded guilty to violating the State law governing the activity of those engaged in the healing arts and paid fines of $25. They were indicted for doing business without paying license fees. Under the new Virginia law all healers must present a certificate showing they have passed the necessary examination before the State Medical Board before they can secure a license.

The defense of the chiropractors was that they did not study medicine and could not therefore pass such an examination.

Graham, after paying his fine, said that he expected to continue his profession here. A third case is before the supreme court for a test of its constitutionality.

APPOINTMENT FIGHT STIRS CLUB MEETING

Mrs. Thomas Winter Upheld by Women of Maryland Federation.

BITTERNESS MARKS VOTE

Special to The Washington Post.

Salisbury, Md., May 6.—Two resolutions, one designed to censure the appointment of Mrs. Thomas Winter to the studio relations committee as a representative of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the second to seek her removal from the body, were overwhelmingly voted down at an extended session of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs here late this afternoon.

Both resolutions were bitterly fought, personalties entering the controversy for a time. The meeting was thrown in an uproar until the chairman, Mrs. Earl Chafee, Chevy Chase, Md., declared that the meeting would be adjourned unless order was restored.

The motion presented by the Neighborhood Improvement Club of Govans, censuring the representative and the appointment failed by a vote of 26 to 110. The motion seeking the removal of the representative failed more overwhelmingly and the vote was not announced. This motion had been presented by the Mothers' Club of Baltimore, and was indorsed by Mrs. Calvin Gabriel, chairman of motion pictures for the Baltimore district.

Before the resolutions were presented, the meeting was thrown into mild disorder by the submission of the report of Mrs. Frederick I. Mosher, which indorsed Mrs. Thomas Winter. The report was submitted through the organization's corresponding secretary.

Resolutions approved include participation of the Women's Clubs in Poppy Day advocation of the kindergarten system, seeking legislation against billboards and indorsement of the Montrose School for Girls.

Missionary Group Opens Conference

Miss Jeannette Rankin Is Speaker at Meeting in Petersburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., May 6.—The Women's Missionary Society of the Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South convened in annual session here this morning in Washington Street Methodist Episcopal Church with 148 delegates and officers from the different districts in attendance.

The conference opened with the Holy Communion, administered by the Rev. W. T. Green, presiding elder of the Petersburg District. The communion was followed by business meetings, at which Mrs. H. T. Barrow, corresponding secretary of the society, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Lee Britt, of Suffolk.

The annual report of the president said that the past year had been marked by some outstanding successes. The Norfolk district led the conference once in percentage of gains and the whole conference holds third place in finances throughout the South. While the gift report was $2.42 in contributions per capita, it does not represent the entire gift, as it does not take in account auxiliary donations. The principal feature of tonight's session of the conference was an address by Miss Jeannette Rankin, former member of Congress, on the subject of "World Peace." The conference will continue in session for three days and three nights.

DAUGHTERS OF KING TO CONVENE TODAY

100 Virginia Delegates Will Attend Annual Session in Alexandria.

POTOMAC WILL GET GAS

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Daughters of the King will hold their thirty-fourth annual assembly in Grace Episcopal Church today, with the provisional president, Mrs. Lillian J. Soper, of Washington, as principal speaker. Approximately 100 delegates and other visitors are expected to attend from Virginia communities as far south as Richmond. Mrs. John West is president of the Grace Church Daughters of the King.

The morning session will open at 11 o'clock, with the Rev. Robert A. Castleman, of Falls Church, presiding. Communion will be administered, with the Rev. Edgar Carpenter, rector of Grace Church, as the celebrant. At noon the business session will be featured with roll call, minutes of 1929, reports of officers, reports of chapters, and the report of the nominating committee.

Luncheon will be served in the parish hall at 1:30 o'clock. Mrs. Soper will deliver her annual address, after which the afternoon will be taken up with chapter business, report of the election committee, miscellaneous business, election of officers, and miscellaneous business. Prayer and adjournment will follow at 4:30 o'clock.

The church and parish hall will be appropriately decorated for the occasion by members of the local chapter.

Preliminary steps are being taken toward the furnishing of gas to the former Town of Potomac, which forms a portion of the territory annexed to Alexandria January 1, and the city council hopes eventually to furnish gas to all residents of that section. A survey of the houses is now being made by the city authorities and notations are being made of the new houses erected since the map of that section was drawn. An estimate will be made of the cost of laying mains and laterals.

Residents of Potomac some time before the annexation proceedings were instituted petitioned the Alexandria City Council for an extension of the mains, but no action was taken at that time, owing to the question being raised of the legality of the city extending its mains beyond the city limits.

The Town of Potomac has a population of 2,355, and it is estimated that there are more than 600 houses which are potential users of city gas.

The Elks Home and Carpenters Hall, both of which are in the 300 block, Prince street, were seriously endangered early yesterday morning by fire in a shed in the rear of the two buildings. One truck and three engine companies responded to the alarm and succeeded in extinguishing the flames before the buildings were damaged.

The fire started in the shed used as a storage place for the Carpenters Hall, and was making rapid headway when it was discovered by a passer-by, who turned in the alarm. Firemen from Truck and Engine Company No. 1, which is just across the street, were the first on the scene and extinguished the fire. In the meantime Nos. 4 and 5 Companies arrived, and each laid out but one line, owing to danger to adjoining properties. Damage was confined principally to the shed and its contents, although the Rathskeller of the Elks Club was slightly damaged by water. The damage is covered by insurance.

Two Men Accused Of 15 Forest Fires

One Named Instigator of Blazes; Other Said to Have Been Paid.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., May 6.—Warrants were issued today in the Frederick County magistrate's court for the arrest of Carson Shaffer, 25, and Carson Williams, 17, charged with responsibility for at least fifteen forest fires which have recently burned over immense tracts of timberland on the slopes of Cedar Creek in the southwestern portion of Frederick County.

The charge was made in the warrants that Shaffer instigated the fires by inducing Williams to set the blazes from time to time, and that Williams was paid a small sum for his work. The fires were set at least fifteen times on property known as the Pancoast land, it was charged in the warrants, and destroyed great quantities of virgin timber and menaced the orchards of numerous apple growers in the vicinity.

County authorities said they had been at work on the case since receiving information recently implicating Shaffer and Williams. They declined, however, to state a motive.

The seventeenth annual Fairfax County horse show will be held in the Fair Grounds at Fairfax on Friday and Saturday, June 6 and 7, and plans are now near completion for the event. All entries must be made by May 26 and boxes and stalls will be assigned in order of entry.

The show will be in charge of Estler M. Palmer, president, Robert D. Graham, secretary, Lewis B. B. Oliver, treasurer, and Emory Galliher and Ray Norton, assisting managers.

This show, a nonprofit sporting event, financed each year by the co-operation of horse loving sportsmen, will be held earlier this year than usual. In other years the show was held in conjunction with the annual county fair in September, but owing to the demand of cattle and stock exhibitors for more stalls than are now available at the fair grounds the two events have been separated. The horse races will be held as usual during the fair.

Census Man Kept Out of Rum Trial

May Not Testify Because His Data Confidential, Official Rules.

Baltimore, May 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Ruling that a census enumerator's testimony was not accepted as evidence because the information he obtained was confidential, United States Commissioner J. Frank Supplee in a prohibition law case today refused to let the enumerator go on the witness stand.

The witness had been called to testify as to the place of residence of Clyde Robinson, of New Bridge, Cecil County, Md., who was brought before the commissioner on three counts of posseasing liquor.

Robinson was freed, Commissioner Supplee declaring that although the man undoubtedly was guilty of violating the prohibition law three times, he dismissed the case because the searches were illegal.

Announcement of the annual levy and the tax rate for Montgomery County probably will be made early in June, county commissioners said yesterday after Berry E. Clark, clerk, had reported on progress of the work of compilation by his office.

Mr. Clark declared that considerable progress had been made in compilation of the taxable basis for the county, and that all transfers of real estate transactions have been made from the recorder of deeds office to the assessment books. Following the completion of this work the commissioners will hear requests for appropriations in connection with the levy.
